MOTHER OF JOHN KENNEY WILL RECEIVE $4,998

City Will Settle for Kenney Boy's Injuries in Accordance With
Act of Legislature

At a hearing held in the mayor's private reception room at city hall this forenoon, four members of the municipal council took an informal vote to pay to Mary A. Kenney the sum of $4,998 for injury to her son, John J. Kenney, a minor. The amount will be paid in three annual installments of $1666 a year, and the suit brought by D. J. Donahue will be dismissed. John J. Kenney was injured by an explosion in the basement of the old Mann school on Oct. 23, 1914. He was attending the industrial school at the time and was assisting Clarence E. Lesner in repairing an automobile, when a tank containing acetylene gas exploded. Mr. Lesner was an instructor in automobile repairing and he received injuries from which he died Nov. 1. Although more seriously injured, John J. Kenney was injured by an

STRIKE DELAYED

Eleventh Hour Effort to Avert Strike at Bridgeport, Conn.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., July 19.—The outcome of an eleventh hour effort to avert the general strike of machinists employed by the Remington Arms & Ammunition company which had been set for this noon, was awaited with keen interest today.

Announcement that it had been agreed to withhold the call for the strike for at least 24 hours, was made last night by J. J. Keppeler, international vice president of the machinists' union and John A. Johnson, vice president of the structural iron workers, as the result of a conference in New York yesterday between Johnson and a man who is said to have large interests in the Bridgeport manufacturing concerns. This man, Mr. Johnson said, believed he could do something to bring about an amicable adjustment of the difficulties. It was expected that some indication as to the success of these efforts would be received by the labor leaders by noon.

Mr. Keppeler was to meet today 35 machinists, discharged Saturday by the Remington machine company. He expected to learn, at the conference, the reason for their discharge.

Before they learned the result of the efforts to avert the strike, labor leaders today said they had been informed there was a possibility that the factories doing contract work for the Remington Co. might attempt to avoid all difficulties over an eight-hour day by cancelling contracts.

"A settlement with the Remington Co." said J. J. Keppeler, international vice president of the machinists' union, "will not save off the demand for an eight hour day. When we get our eight hour day, we will then take up the question with the sub-contractors and with all the machine shops in Bridgeport. If the sub-contractors throw contracts rather than grant their employees an eight hour day, it will not avail them anything. We intend to get an eight hour day in Bridgeport and we will go after it until we do get it."

Mr. Keppeler announced that the die sinkers and the drop forgers, making bayonets for the French army at the Remington plant, had held a meeting and decided definitely to join the movement with the machinists. He announced further that the Amalgamated Society of Engineers, a British organization affiliated with the I. A. of M. in this country, and one of the oldest labor organizations in the world, had endorsed the movement of the machinists. The organization has members working in the Remington plant. It was also said that the United Association of Plumbers and Steam Fitters had informed the machinists that they too probably would join.

Mr. W. G. Penfield, works superintendent of the Remington Arms and Ammunition Co., said over the telephone from his office today that he had heard of no negotiations and that he did not know the identity of the man, John A. Johnson, vice president of the Structural Iron Workers, conferred with in New York on Saturday. He said conditions at the plant were normal. It was at that conference that Mr. Johnson agreed to postpone the calling of the strike for at least 24 hours, so that persons interested in the continued prosperity of Bridgeport might have an opportunity to make an effort to have the differences between the unions and the Remington Co. settled amicably.

The millwrights met today in the hall occupied by the machinists for the purpose of forming a union. The millwrights in this city have never been organized before. It was a dispute over whose jurisdiction they were under that precipitated the present strike. Mr. Johnson said he had been informed that because the structural iron workers on the new buildings being erected for the Remington Co. were out on strike the bricklayers soon would be forced to quit. He said the bricklayers had worked up to the point where the structural iron workers quit and that he believed they would be unable to do more work after tomorrow.

Representatives of the machinists' union went to the plant this forenoon to make sure that none of the men went out on strike at the noon hour. They thought it probable that some of the machinists might not have heard of the change in the general plans. Both Mr. Keppeler and Mr. Johnson agreed today that unless a favorable message was received from the persons trying to arrange for a settlement the men would be called out tomorrow.

FATHER KILLS SON AND DAUGHTER

Harry Nutting Killed Children While
They Slept and Then Attacked Wife Who Overpowered Him After Desperate Struggle — Nutting Arrested and Held Without Bail

Harry Nutting, a well known cider maker of Groton, shot and killed his son Everett and daughter Louise this morning at his home, and later attempted to level the gun at his wife's head, but was prevented by the wife, who wrestled with him and finally disarmed him. Nutting was later arrested and arraigned in the district court at Ayer, charged with the murder of his son and daughter. His case was continued for a week, he being held without bail and sent to the county jail at East Cambridge.

The double murder was committed early this morning, while the two victims were sleeping soundly in their respective rooms at the Nutting home. According to Mrs. Nutting's story, she was awakened at 4.30 o'clock by the report of a gun in an adjoining room, followed almost immediately by a second shot. The woman said she rushed out of her room and met her husband in the hall with a rifle in his hands. Before he could level it at her she grabbed the weapon and after a time succeeded in getting it away from him. An investigation about the other rooms disclosed a horrible tragedy. Everett Nutting, a son of the alleged murderer, was found lying in bed with a bullet wound over his eye, while his sister, Louise, was also found in her room, shot through the ear. The chief of police of Groton was quickly notified and before Nutting could make his escape, the town official placed him under arrest. The prisoner was hurriedly removed to the district jail at Ayer, and, although he was questioned about the deed, he refused to make any statement.

Everett Nutting was 21 years of age and was employed by his father, while the girl, Louise, was 19 years old and was employed by the town as a school teacher. Some of the neighbors stated Nutting had been considered slightly deranged for some time.

Nutting was taken into the district court at Ayer shortly before noon, and at the request of both the prosecution and the defense, the case was continued for a week. The prisoner was held without bail and sent to the county jail at East Cambridge.

Variety of Charges From Mur-

When this forenoon's two hour session of police court had been brought to a close, the Middlesex county treasury was swelled by approximately $120 collected in fines ranging from five dollars to $100. Forty-one offenders for various complaints, including one for alleged murder, responded to the call of Acting Clerk George F. Toye and the wheels of justice moved rapidly from one to the other. Previous to the opening of court the long list of drunken offenders was thinned out by the releasing of 15 first timers.

The Murder
The complaint in the local court against John Comatos charging him with the murder of John Demos at 2 Elm place, was dismissed as the State Officer Eustis appeared in court with a capias for Comatos and stated that a copy of the indictment was read to him early this morning. After Judge Enright had allowed the complaint dismissed, Comatos was taken to the jail at Cambridge to await his arraignment. Attorneys James F. Owens and Benjamin J. Moloney were in court in Comatos' behalf.

Physician Says His Con- dition Much Worse— Throat Slashed

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., July 19.—Physicians who examined Leo M. Frank in the state prison early today said his condition was much worse. The jagged cut in his throat, received at the hands of a fellow prisoner Saturday night was swollen and his temperature was 103.2-5.

Dr. W. J. McNaughton, a convict, was near Frank when he was attacked. Dr. McNaughton, like Frank, was saved from the gallows by a commutation of sentence from Gov. Clayton. Dr. Rosenberg today gave Dr. McNaughton full credit for saving Frank's life. His quick work in making a ligature of the ends of the jugular vein stopped the flow of blood. Dr. Rosenberg also said that the muscles in Frank's neck were badly cut and that if he lives he always will have a stiff neck.

Dr. H. J. Rosenberg, the Frank family physician who returned to Atlanta last night believed Frank's condition warranted his leaving. He

TOPROTECT SHIPS NEW PURITY PLAN

Boston Man Has Plan to Save Ships From Submarine Attacks

BOSTON, July 19.—Ewen Clark of 418 Winthrop avenue, Revere, a Boston real estate man, has developed two devices to protect ships against submarines and torpedoes. Mr. Clark has sent details of his two plans to the British Admiralty and to the United States navy officials. The latter reported that our naval experts were working on schemes very similar to those worked out by Mr. Clark.

One of the devices is designed to protect a single ship against other submarines or torpedoes, but most especially the latter. Mr. Clark acknowledges that his device would retard the progress of the boat to some extent, but states that he intends it for use on large, slow-moving boats, such as transports and supply ships. It consists of a number of outposts, radiating from the hull of the vessel. On the ends of the outposts are wheels, ever which run a heavy chain. Midway between the ends of the posts and the hull is a similar arrangement of wheels and chain, but with the wheels revolving in the opposite direction. The passage of the vessel through the water causes the outer and inner chains to turn in opposite directions. To each of the chains is hitched a heavy net, which is really a series of small, square nets, each so arranged that if a torpedo or submarine strikes it will immediately close up like a bag, imprisoning the torpedo or submarine.

As the two nets are constantly operating in opposite directions, should a submarine or torpedo by any chance succeed in slipping through the meshes of the first net it will be stopped by the second.

The other device is intended to safeguard a flotilla of ships, or a single ship conveyed by submarines or tugs. It consists of the same sort of net, attached to steel buoys which keep the upper end afloat. The length of the net and its depth would depend entirely on the exigencies of the occasion.

For the protection of a single vessel two of these buoyed nets are towed by tugs or submarines, which sail either side and slightly in advance of the vessel to be protected. The nets, floating far astern of the towing vessels, protect the vessel sailing between and astern of the towing ships.

In protecting a flotilla every vessel is fitted with one of the nets, while two submarines, heading and flanking the flotilla, are also fitted with them.

Instead of nets the floats may be used with thin steel plates, with similar results.

Pres. Roe Urges Change at Congress — Calls Chicago Cleanest City

SAN FRANCISCO, July 19.—Addressing delegates to the ninth international purity congress today, Clifford G. Roe of Chicago, president of the American Bureau of Moral Education, appointed by President Wilson as American delegate to the congress, proposed a new purity plan. "In the past," he said, "our efforts have been largely centered upon the school teacher, the doctor, the lawyer and the minister. Our plan is to bring the facts before the great masses of the people—the farmer, the business man and the laborer. The message of purity, therefore, not only preached today from the pulpit, but likewise from the Chautauqua and lecture platform and in club rooms and auditoriums of great commerce associations."

Mr. Roe said he believed Chicago is today morally the cleanest metropolitan city in the world, which condition was brought about by "an aroused public sentiment—a quickened moral conscience—a deeper and truer conviction concerning the responsibility of citizenship."

TO GUARD EMBASSIES

SECRET SERVICE MEN AT SPRING-RICE HOUSE IN BEVERLY—LETTERS CAUSE OF PRECAUTION

BOSTON, July 19.—When Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the British ambassador, arrives at his summer cottage at Beverly Cove this week he will find a picked guard of United States secret service men on hand to protect him from cranks. The guard arrived in Beverly yesterday and made a thorough search of the Fanny Powell mansion cottage in Prince street, which the ambassador is occupying this summer. After satisfying themselves that all was well, they took up stations at the main and waterfront entrances to the estate, and watched for suspicious persons.

It is said the guard was placed as a result of the letter written at St. Orleans by the mysterious "Pearce," who declared that Muenster intended to wreak vengeance on the British ambassador after his attack on J. P. Morgan. As "Pearce" could not be found and Muenster committed suicide before the letter was received, the statement could not now be verified. So much publicity was given the threat, however, that federal authorities thought it best to protect Sir Cecil and his family, lest some other crank seek to carry it out.

The best men available for the service were procured. Among them were men who did duty at Sagamore Hill. Theodore Roosevelt was president and others who looked after the safety of President Taft during the summer he spent at Beverly. All are trained in the guarding of a large estate and detecting cranks.

The ambassador and Lady Spring-Rice are in Washington at present, and only their children and their servants are at the Miron cottage. The ambassador and his wife are due here this week, but the date of their arrival has been kept secret as an additional precaution for their safety.

There was a rumor also that secret service men were to be stationed at Pith Pine Hill, as the Luke cottage at Beverly Farms, which is occupied this summer by Count Macchi di Gelere, the Italian ambassador, is called, but the report could not be verified last night.

QUINCY STORM FRANK

Rain Enters Windows and Puts 32 Telephone Out of Commission for a Time

QUINCY, July 19.—A sudden mid-summer storm yesterday played popular pranks with a number of telephones. From 32 homes where people had gone away, leaving windows open, there came a deluge of rain. The light system at central that the telephones were out of order. An investigation showed the rain going through the windows had saturated the telephone cords and put the telephones temporarily out of business.

The downpour in some parts of the city was as violent as it was sudden and some streets were flooded. On other streets only a few drops fell and along the shore there was no rain. The rain cloud was not large enough to cover the entire city.

VICTORY FOR CARRANZA

FORCES UNDER GEN. CALLES DEFEAT VILLA ARMY AT AUGUA PRIETA

DOUGLAS, Ariz., July 19.—After a six-hour battle at Amavacachi pass, west of Augua Prieta, General Carranza's forces in Sonora, were reported late yesterday to have decisively defeated Villa troops under General Jose Maria Acosta. The Calles force was said to have numbered 3000, while Acosta's was reported as half that number.

In a message received yesterday by Agarduno, consul for Carranza, from General Calles at Laramie, 20 miles west of Augua Prieta, the Villa troops were reported as fleeing in all directions.

The message stated that the battle began at 6 o'clock yesterday morning. The Villa forces were strongly entrenched in the pass and for five hours held out against cannon and rapid-fire guns.

During the fighting 300 of Acosta's men, reported to be killed, and estimated the Villa dead, wounded and captured at 500. Calles did not report his own casualties, though they were claimed to be relatively small by officials in Augua Prieta. According to Agarduno, Gen. Calles intended to press forward to Cananea, as soon as he received ammunition, which left Augua Prieta yesterday.

Villa's representatives here today refused to admit defeat, saying that the battle still continued.

BABY ON BOWERS AVENUE

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Delarondo of 123 Limer Avenue, this city, who are spending the summer at their camp in Bowers avenue, Willow Dale, are rejoicing over the birth of a daughter, fourth in the family, who was born July 12. The child was christened yesterday afternoon at St. Louis rectory and was given the names of Marie Dorothy, the sponsors being Thomas Delarondo and Miss Beatrice Delarondo. According to the people who have been living in that vicinity for years, little Dorothy Delarondo is the first child to be born in Bowers avenue since Indian time, which dates back probably two centuries. That part of Willow Dale is in Tynesboro and there is nothing on the town records to show that a child ever occurred in that district, so the new arrival tells the distinction of being the first white child born on Bowers avenue on the shores of Lake Massapequa.

THE LUMBER INDUSTRY HEARING AT CHICAGO TO DEVELOP AMERICA'S FOREIGN COMMERCE

CHICAGO, July 19.—First-hand information concerning conditions in the lumber manufacturing industry in the United States was presented to members of the federal trade commission, which opened a two days' hearing here today. Saw mill owners, wholesale dealers, timber land owners and representatives of lumber associations supplied the commissioners with data on conditions.

The hearings are a part of a nationwide series arranged toward developing America's foreign commerce. On Wednesday the commission will hold a session in Detroit, on Thursday in Cincinnati and on Friday in Indianapolis, returning to Chicago on Monday to resume its inquiry.

Later sessions will be held in many of the large cities of the west to the Pacific coast.

In outlining the purposes of the hearing, Edward N. Hurley of Chicago, vice chairman of the commission, said:

"In the judgment of the best business brains of this country there never has been so favorable an opportunity for American commerce to seek and find foreign markets for its products as at this juncture."

"With the prospect in view of getting the facts regarding our foreign trade possibilities the commission has entered upon this investigation. The market is there and we must develop it."

President Downman gave the commission a statement of conditions in the industry, which he represents, in which he said that the last eight years has been a period "of demoralization." "Practically little or no profit has been made," Mr. Downman said. "At present an actual loss in the business is occurring, not only for profits, but an unavoidable, but nevertheless shameful waste of forest resources."

"The railroads, one of the largest consumers of lumber, have not been in the market normally since 1907. The export business, which consumed ten per cent. of the production, has practically ceased on account of the war. In the summer of 1914 building operations stopped by reason of financial conditions."

"All of these, coupled with uncontrolled output, contribute to produce the demoralizing conditions that have existed for a long period. Prices have gone to pieces, wage scales have been universally reduced and bankruptcy has overtaken many individuals in the industry."

Mr. Downman submitted data from commercial agencies, economists, the census reports and the forest review service in support of his representations.

The legal length of lobsters that can be taken in Maine remains 4 1/2 inches from nose to the beginning of the tail and is known as bone measurement. It is said that this measurement favors the fisherman over the old 10-inch law, to the extent of a dozen to 15 lobsters in every 100.

All the beaches, parks, rivers and summer places that offered relief yesterday were thronged.

HELD FOR LEATHER THEFTS

LYNN, July 19.—Following an investigation of a long series of leather thefts at the shoe factories here, the police had under arrest yesterday Matthew Connell, president of the Mathew Connell Co., dealers in leather remnants, and Edward Dillon. Dillon is alleged to have had in his possession a bag of leather taken from one of the factories. The police say that within the last few months leather valued at thousands of dollars has disappeared from the factories.

GOV. WALSH COMING HOME

TO START FOR BOSTON TOMORROW—DECISION ON CANDIDACY EXPECTED

BOSTON, July 19.—Governor Walsh wired yesterday that he would leave San Francisco Wednesday and come directly to Boston. He is expected to arrive here the first of next week.

A message to this effect was received by his brother, Major Thomas Walsh, yesterday. Major Walsh said that immediately upon his return the governor would announce his decision on whether he will be a candidate for a third term.

The governor decided not to remain with the delegation from this state at the fair because of the political situation here, where there is considerable uneasiness among the democratic leaders because of his failure to announce his attitude on a third term.

HOT WEATHER HINTS

DIRECTIONS FOR HUMANE TREATMENT OF DOMESTIC ANIMALS BY REV. J. M. GREENE, D. D.

The following communication is from our former townsman, the Rev. J. M. Greene, pastor emeritus of the Elliot Congregational church. His hints on the subject treated are excellent, and should receive careful consideration.

Editor: Lowell Sun:

Will you allow me to make a few suggestions as to the treatment of domestic animals during the hot season?

The horse.—Whether the "poke-bonnet" hats are "worse than nothing" or not, they should be taken off the heads of horses. Wire framed canopies are far better. If a wet sponge is fastened on the horse's head, keep it wet or it is worse than nothing.

Don't cut off your horse's mane or forelock; he needs them for a defense as he does his tail, or nature would not have given them.

It has been mutilated for life by "docking," keep off insects either by fly-netting or by rubbing on lightly a mixture of one part of "10 penny" rosin in one pint of olive oil.

Let him drink frequently, but give only a little at a time.

Don't give him anything with that instrument of torture, the high check-rein.

At night let the fresh air circulate freely by opening the windows and doors, and let him sleep in the shade.

After the day's work, sponge out the sweat and harness marks with sweat and harness marks, and wipe away sweat.

Give the horse a wide stall, so he can lie down, and clean out the stall at least twice a day, and sweep it out.

Give him a little water before and after his work, but not within three-quarters of an hour after eating.

Give him something with the heat, get him into the shade, but cold water or an ice-pack on head and along spine, wet water on body occasionally, sponge out the sweat, and give him a little water.

Give this mixture: Aromatic spirits of ammonia, four ounces; water, one pint.

In hot weather take extra care that the collar fits and the wagon wheels are well greased.

The dog.—The dogs have plenty of water, but don't let them run after your carriage, bicycle or car.

Because a dog acts strangely on the street, he is "mad," or "rabid," is the rarest of diseases. He is suffering from heat, thirst, sickness or some form of abuse. Put water on him and get him into some quiet, shady place. And remember, "Mad" dogs never frolic at the mouth.

Don't tickle him; his nature demands freedom and a reasonable amount of exercise.

Give the long-haired dogs a little comfort by their heavy coats.

The cat.—Refuse to add one more to the number of abandoned cats, left to a wretched existence in alley ways while their owners enjoy themselves at the summer resorts.

This act of cruelty is now forbidden under penalty by the laws of Massachusetts.

If you cannot take the cat with you, get some home or refuge for it. The Animal Rescue League, at Cambridge, Boston, cares for small animals and has also a department for horses.

The birds.—If you keep a little bird in a cage, see that it has plenty of fresh air and fresh water, and don't let the sun shine on it too long.

A parrot enjoys a piece of soft wood, like a large spoon. In his cage, so he can carve it with his bill and kill the weary time.

Put an earthen jar, sunk in the ground in a shady place near your door, full of fresh water (changed every day at least) for small water-loving creatures, including the birds.

This is a common custom in some countries. Every public fountain should have a basin for the small animals.

J. M. Greene, Dorchester, Mass.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

CANOBIE LAKE PARK

What may be honestly termed the biggest and best bill of vaudeville ever presented at a summer park theatre opens today at Canobie Lake park for the balance of this week with matinee and evening performances.

In respect the theatre at Canobie differs from any other inasmuch as it is not intended to show a profit. I. e., the management is content to put the full amount of receipts into the show itself and even sacrifice a loss in order to give the theatre a program that will add to the many attractions of the park.

Heading the big bill this week are the Twelve Daytons, the biggest, most sensational and astounding acrobatic act in all vaudeville today, composed of three men, three women and six midgets.

Alma, Painchaude and her four Venetian beauties present a beautiful and thrilling slinging and dancing conception that is bound to receive its share of appreciation from the audiences.

A host of other good acts, including Eddie Dowling, with some of the better kind of photoplays, complete the offering which is expected to draw increased attendances every day.

The matinee starts at 3:15 o'clock, while in the evening the curtain will rise promptly at 8:15 o'clock, allowing the public plenty of time to reach Canobie in time for both performances.

OWL THEATRE

"As this man has done to me, so shall I do to all men. From now on, my heart is for my passion consuming the lot men beware." The beautiful but evil Devil's Daughter utters these words when Luigi, her lover, deserts her. From that moment her progress is unimpeded by the blasted hopes and ruined careers of her many admirers.

That in short is the theme of the poem, "The Devil's Daughter," which was pictured by William Fox for a Broadway attraction. Theda Bara, the famous "Vampire Woman," plays this famous role. The story is adapted from "La Gioconda," into a modern society drama of unusual strength.

D'Annunzio, the author, is also the writer of "Cabiria" and other big motion picture successes, besides his many famous works in other fields of endeavor—produced by Frank Powell, this play takes on gigantic proportions and will prove one of the biggest hits of the summer season.

Charles Chaplin in his Keystone comedy, "Crossed Wires," in two parts, and another two-reel drama will complete a performance of wonderful value giving for prices of admission.

ROYAL THEATRE

"What do you know about the war?" is a question which is often fired at you these days. Well, the man who doesn't quite know the latest developments of the big conflict can easily instruct himself by going to the Royal theatre tonight or tomorrow and see the three reels of authentic war motion pictures, which will be shown in connection with the regular show.

War is what Sherman said it was—a glance at the bloody encounter between the armies in these three reels of pictures proves this assertion. An interesting display of guns, caps, ammunitions and what-nots is on free exhibition at the Royal theatre tonight. It is quite interesting and worth while to see. Of course, besides this remarkable and true series of pictures, the management will show, as usual, a great line of new and interesting pictures, and it is well to remember also that on Wednesday and Thursday, the fourth episode of "The Romance of Elaine" will be shown on Friday and Saturday. "The Romance of Elaine" will grace the head of the list of attractions.

D. P. KEITH'S THEATRE

"The Juggernaut," the colossus of modern railway drama, and a "Vignette" by Ring, the first half of the present week, beginning this afternoon, Earle Williams and Anita Stewart will be in the leading roles, although William Dunn will have an excellent position in the cast.

The story unfolded in the five parts of this feature is compelling and gripping. It is the story of a young man who is in the beginning of his career as a railway engineer. One is poor—has worked his way along, in fact, while the other is the son of a wealthy railroad president. They are inseparable. Unfortunately for the poorer of the two he becomes involved in a dispute and injures a man. But the son of the rich man pulls him through all right.

Later on they become attentive to a beautiful woman. Both woo her, but the son of the railroad president wins her hand. The poorer of the college boys withdraws. But they remain fast friends. Years pass, and the poor college boy has developed into a lawyer of renown. He becomes district attorney and it falls to him to prosecute a certain railroad which has done questionable things. He is relentless in his prosecution, and one day becomes aware of the fact that he is forcing the hand of his former college chum. His old friend threatens to expose him, but this only draws more of the attorney's fire.

But once again the two men worship the same girl—while the other, because she is her mother's counterpart. This girl is on a train which is fast approaching a bridge which cannot stand the weight of it. Both men—the father and the district attorney—rush madly to save the train from disaster. One is in his automobile, the other in a high powered motor boat. And they all come into the picture at the same time.

It is a moving picture in the sense of having dramatic power. The coaches crumple up like tissue paper. The father and the district attorney see the girl—but other things happen, too. The climax of this picture will

YOUTH WHO DROVE OFF BILLY-ICA MAN'S HORSE AND BUGGY LANDED IN LOCKUP

There was considerable excitement in the vicinity of Merrimack square Saturday night when John O'Donnell, a youth of 21 years, was arrested for the alleged theft of a horse, wagon and harness owned by Leslie S. Peavey of Billerica.

It is claimed that O'Donnell took possession of the outfit on Whipple street and drove through Belvidere down East Merrimack street toward the square. The theft was seen by Arthur Thomas, aged 15 years, who followed O'Donnell on a bicycle until he met Patrolman Michael Winn and Traffic Officer Edward P. Connors near the corner of Davidson street. After young Thomas had pointed out the alleged culprit the two officers, assisted by Patrolman John J. Schavan, followed the wagon, overtaking it near Merrimack square. At that O'Donnell consented to go to the station but on the way put up a fight and made a vigorous attempt to get away from the policemen. During the trouble Patrolman Michael Winn sustained a sprained finger, but this did not keep the guardian of the peace in Merrimack square from attending to his duties for the remainder of the evening.

This play calls for quick dramatic action and is there a plenty. The all star cast includes such celebrities as Robert Cummings, Thurlow Bergen and Carlotta Selwynne. "The Love Lie" is shown in three reels and is a picture of a young girl who marries a man many years her senior for other reasons than love or affection. The Charlie Chaplin comedies are one in which he does himself proud, while the Pathe weekly will be found to be of great interest.

JUST about a year ago, or, to be exact, on July 31, 1914, Russia ordered the general mobilization of her army. On the next day, Aug. 1, Germany declared war on Russia, and on that same day the French cabinet ordered mobilization.

Thus the war now raging over all Europe has celebrated its first birthday and has developed nothing that looks like peace. On Aug. 2 German forces entered Luxembourg, and the Kaiser demanded free passage through Belgium. Two days later Germany sent an ultimatum to Belgium demanding the observance of Belgium's neutrality, which was rejected on the day it was received. German troops then attacked Liege, and President Wilson issued the first neutrality proclamation.

The war to date, according to conservative estimates compiled from the best available reports, has caused a loss to the various belligerents of more than 6,000,000 men, dead, wounded and prisoners, and more than 600 ships. Of these about 120 were war vessels.

The outstanding results on land are these:

The greater part of Belgium is under the control of Germany.

Germany has been driven from the far east.

A part of the Dardanelles is in the possession of the allied troops.

Part of France and Russia are in the possession of German troops.

A small strip of Alsace has been taken from Germany.

On the continent of Africa parts of territorial possessions have been lost by both sides.

Various island possessions of Germany have been taken by the forces of the allies.

Italian troops are in possession of a strip of Austrian territory.

Losses in Sea Battles.

The outstanding results at sea are these:

German and Austrian mercantile shipping has been driven from all the open seas.

German and Austrian war vessels, having a total displacement of approximately 257,000 tons, have been destroyed.

War vessels of the allied nations, having a total displacement of approximately 192,000 tons, have been sent to the bottom.

The greater portions of the German and allied fleets in the North sea remain intact.

Except for communication through Holland and the Scandinavian nations, Germany is cut off from the rest of the world.

Efforts on the part of the Germans to place the British Isles in a similar predicament have resulted in the sinking by submarines of hundreds of vessels flying the flags of the allied and neutral nations.

The sinking in this manner of the Cunard liner Lusitania with the loss of more than 100 American lives precipitated a request upon the part of the United States that such practices, in so far as they might menace Americans, be stopped.

The First Land Operations.

By Aug. 17 the first British expeditionary force had completed its landing in France, and on that day there began also a fierce battle on the Jadar between the Austrian and Serbian troops. Victory was with the Serbian arms after five days of fighting, and the Austrians were routed.

In the meanwhile the battle of Lorraine had opened, and the German troops had entered Brussels, the Belgian capital.

A few days later, Aug. 23, the victorious Germans entered Namur and began an attack on Mons, defended principally by the first British expeditionary force. The next day the British troops began a retreat from their position, and from then on until Sept. 12 the German troops drove through France under the leadership of General von Kluck. Zeppelins bombarded Antwerp; the French were forced to evacuate Muehausen; the Germans took and swept over Longwy and reached Senlis, thirty miles from Paris, where the columns swung to the eastward. The French government fled to Bordeaux.

In the meanwhile German and Austrian troops had met the Russians. A victory at Krasnik was announced by the Austrian government on Aug. 23, while on Aug. 25 the German army under General von Hindenburg defeated another Russian force at Tannenberg. Part of Louvain was burned by Germans on the same day that the Japanese blockade of Tsingtao was begun. The blockade was maintained more than two months before Tsingtao surrendered.

Two days after the French government moved to Bordeaux the battle of the Marne was begun, a few hours before Russian troops succeeded in occupying Lemberg, the capital of Galicia.

Germans Forced Back.

Before the French and British troops the Germans in France were forced to retreat as far as the Aisne. Events of the next few days included the bombardment of Rheims by the Germans and the sinking by a German submarine of the British cruisers Aboukir, Cressy and Hogue. On the same day the Russian troops attacked Przemyśl and took Jaroslaw.

British troops from India were landed from transports at Marseilles on Sept. 26 and were immediately dispatched to the northward. Before their arrival at their destination the Germans had inaugurated a siege of Antwerp, which resulted in the Belgian government moving from that city to Ostend. Two days later the bombardment of Antwerp began. The Belgian government remained at Ostend for about a week and then removed to Havre, France. Forty-eight hours later the Germans captured Ostend. Meanwhile the allied troops occupied Ypres. German assaults upon the allied lines between Ypres and Neuport continued for a week and then weakened.

During the latter part of October the British Dreadnought Audacious was sunk off the Irish coast; the Russians successfully attacked Lodz and Radom, driving out the invading Germans. Turkey joined the war at that juncture by naval operations in the Black sea. Odessa was attacked.

MRS. ROBERT LANSING, NEW "FIRST LADY" OF THE LAND

WITH the appointment of Robert Lansing as secretary of state the figure of Mrs. Lansing looms large upon the social horizon of Washington. For the wife of the premier, is ex officio, an important personage, and none the less in this instance, as Mrs. Lansing is a bit of a personage in her own right.

"As the daughter of John W. Foster, one time secretary of state, she has had large experience of official life here and abroad. She is thoroughly versed in the customs of Washington society and fitted to assume the role of leader of the official contingent."

Mr. and Mrs. Lansing make their home with Mr. and Mrs. Foster in Eighteenth street. As Miss Eleanor Foster, Mrs. Lansing was a belle of the capital during the days when her father headed President Harrison's cabinet. She is an unusually handsome woman, graceful, charming, aristocratic and is considered one of the beauties of the cabinet contingent.

While Mr. Bryan was secretary of state it was the tendency to speak of Mrs. Bryan as the "social arbiter" of Washington officialdom and, since Mrs. Wilson's death, "first lady of the land." Mrs. Bryan never cared to advance this claim because Mrs. Thomas Riley Marshall, wife of the vice president, and Miss Margaret Wilson, the president's daughter, were entitled to the distinction by all canons of official etiquette. Likewise Mrs. Lansing will evade and ignore this distinction, but there is no law on earth that will keep the society folk from referring to her as the "first lady."

A contrast of Mrs. Bryan and Mrs. Lansing is interesting just at this time. Mrs. Bryan is a woman whose interest centers entirely in her husband and in her family and is inclined to agree with her husband that the social side of statecraft is of small consequence. Mrs. Bryan was only too glad to avail herself of the official mourning for Mrs. Wilson to refrain from all entertaining not absolutely necessary and to evade as much social responsibility as possible. Moreover, although intelligent, cultivated and traveled, Mrs. Bryan, until her husband entered the cabinet, had scant knowledge of official life.

Mrs. Bryan has always prided herself on being more of a domestic woman than a society woman. She has gone in for studious things, being a lawyer in her own right, and is a model of domesticity.

In contrast to Mrs. Bryan, Mrs. Lansing has wide and intimate experience of life in the great capitals of Europe, and her long residence in Washington has familiarized her with the peculiar social problems of the place and with the far-reaching effects of the social side of diplomacy and statecraft. However, she is not a social man in the usually accepted meaning of the term, which implies empty-headedness and irresponsibility. Indeed, she has been in the front of the day.

August the Greatest of All Vacation Months

WHEN you live in a big city the problem of how you are going to pass the month of August—the most disagreeable in the year usually—looms large. It is the big vacation month of the year, and everybody yearns for the country, the shady nooks, the fresh air and the absolute change in environment, surroundings and conditions. The change and relaxation really constitute the vacation.

So everybody who is able takes a rest. But think of those in the city who are not able, who live in the slums and never get away from the tall tenements and ugly walls which cut off all the breeze! Are they forgotten? Not by any means.

In almost every city there exist organizations which have been formed for the very purpose of caring for the mothers and children. Nearly every city has a camp for the babies where they are given plenty of good wholesome food, plenty of fresh air, scientific care and are converted into entirely different children. This charity has grown in leaps and bounds, and people are devoting as much attention to caring for the children in the hot months as they do in the cold.

Notable among such organizations is one conducted by a New York newspaper, which daily gives thousands of tons of love to the poor. One man donates ten tons to this fund each day. The churches, the Young Men's and Young Women's Christian associations conduct camps for the youngsters, and each year sees the work carried on in a bigger manner.

But those who love their vacations most of all are the girls who earn their own living. Their number is increasing with great rapidity in every city, and they look forward for eleven months to their annual outings.

Miss Anne Morgan, daughter of the late financier, realized the difficulties faced by the great army of New York working girls and set about to remove them. She has succeeded in an admirable manner. She wanted to give these girls the chance to have the best time on their available funds. Camp Inkowa is the result.

It is a beautiful spot where the self-supporting young woman may go for a blissful two weeks, more or less, provided she can pay the sum of $5 a week for her board, her lodging and a good time, in which no element of condescension or gratitude is mingled.

Each girl who has been able to save a few dollars desires to go somewhere into the country and get all those things which are otherwise impossible for them. Some like to go to populous beaches where there is continual excitement to be had. Others dread the idea of going to small hotels and unattractive boarding houses which bring little rest and no change to their faded nerves.

1.—Boys in New York streets. 2.—Typical slum scene. 3.—In the fresh air. 4. 5 and 6.—Trying to keep cool. 7.—Miss Anne Morgan.

And these are the ones who desire to get out into the real country, "to throw off the iron bands of city restraint and conventionality; to realize that one is free, a human being with a soul to express; to feel and yield to the impulse to dance and shout for joy; to view new scenes, to meet new people," quote ing from Miss Morgan's camp booklet. And to these young women there has hitherto been little opportunity given to take advantage of that which should be most simply open to them. There is, too, the question of character and companionship. These girls have no desire to go to a spot where they have no friends nor assurance that they can make friends at a vacation spot, yet an unknown quantity.

If this camp cannot be made self-supporting it means that the camp is wrong. If the girls do not want to go to it it is the fault of the camp, and there is no forcing them to go. If they do not like the free open air life no one will be waiting them with somber brow and "pensive finger in book" to explain to them the nobility of quiet thought and the charms of nature.

LADY LOOKABOUT

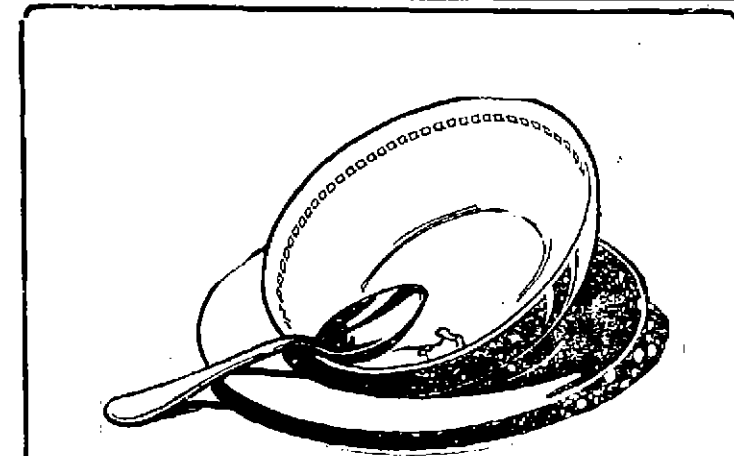

There is no doubt that the Jitney bus service is needed in some sections, yet there are indications in many quarters that it is not standing up well under competition. It is difficult to see how it can be run on a paying basis except in cities where the business section is congested and the distances comparatively short. Like other widely heralded innovations, it probably will be popular for a time, but the kind indulgence of the public will be short-lived if the Jitney bus service attempts to take advantage of unfortunate conditions as was done last week when the "Widow" show was in town. More than one Jitney bus driver jumped his fare to the Fair Grounds to 10 cents. Such a move is not calculated to increase public confidence in the venture. If they offer to the public a cheap taxi service, then they are opening a field too long closed to the average person. There is no reason why American cities with their obvious advantages in the way of producing cheaper cars, rubber and gasoline, should not enjoy what European cities have had for many years.

Safety First Society

The Safety First society and the police department of New York city are devising plans for the thorough examination of the mechanical parts of automobiles that figure in accidents. This may be a very effective method of proving a machine blameless, but it does not wholly free the operator from the charge of reckless driving. Doubtless many accidents are caused by defects in mechanical parts of automobiles, but it would seem that the purpose of the examination of these parts would be much better accomplished by making it previous to, rather than subsequent to an accident. It seems like a modern version of "locking the stable door after the horse has been stolen."

The Movies

To those of us who are watching the development of the motion picture with faith in its future as an educational agent, it will come as a sort of disappointment to learn that the recent presentation in New York city of Shakespeare's "Hamlet," while successful as a picture, is not considered a success as a photograph. The performance included such famous actors as Forbes-Robertson, Gertrude Elliott and the members of their London company, but even with these, the story of the play as pictured was impossible of interpretation by an audience not already familiar with it. This is probably due to the reason that in nearly all the Shakespearean dramas there is a tremendous amount of off-stage action which is absolutely essential to the working out of the plot, and which must be recited by the principals in order to convey the dramatic force of the story. This condition is particularly true in "Hamlet," in which the death of Hamlet's father is revealed

PRACTICAL SPORTS COSTUMES EASILY MADE
AT HOME FOR MISSES AND SMALL WOMEN

Here is an ideal sports costume. It consists of a three-piece skirt with lapped front edges and generous pockets and a plain blouse. The design is smart in every detail and all girls who like tennis, golf and boating and all outdoor pleasures will recognize its availability. In the picture, the skirt is made of white linen and the blouse is made of striped blue and white with white collar and cuffs, but one can think of a dozen ways in which the treatment could be varied. For skirts, gowns and corduroy are much liked and linen in color as well as in white is being used, pique is fashionable and there are cotton crepes and rattans that are excellent for the purpose. For the blouse, handkerchief linen and cotton lawns are equally fashionable, plain colored crepes and plain colored velvets are much liked and tub silks, both in stripes and in plain colors are smart. Plain colored handkerchief lawns and silks are being much used with trimming of white and trimming of striped materials so that there is a great deal of variety possible from just these two simple garments. If the skirt is wanted for travelling in place of for sports use, it could be made of serge, either white or colored and worn with any jacket or coat to match. If a more tailored effect is wanted, a plain skirt can be used in place of the skirt and trimming straps extended from it to the pockets where they are buttoned into place.

Both box-plaited skirts and box-plaited blouses are exceedingly smart just now and here is a costume that will add greatly to the comfort of the late summer. It can be made of one material throughout or the skirt can be made of linen or pique, while the blouse is of handkerchief lawn, tub silk or some similar material of lighter weight. It takes extremely smart lines and is in every way desirable. Incidentally, it may be added that the college students who are looking to the autumn will like it for linen and materials of the kind to be worn in the classroom, for it is both simple and smart. If it is desirable to avoid a washable skirt, serge could be used. The plait in the skirt falls in exceedingly graceful and becoming lines and the yoke makes a smart feature. The blouse also is finished with a yoke and has the advantage of a convertible collar that can be finished as it is here or buttoned up closely about the throat. Whether a costume for the August outing is under consideration or one for between seasons is in demand, the model will be found available.

There are so many attractive bordered materials to be had just now that many women are on the outlook for suitable designs. Here is one that is charming. The skirt is a simple, straight one that can be joined to a belt or to the yoke. The blouse is made with straight fronts that are adapted to this use and with a collar and vest of a contrasting material that are charming. Here, they are made of handkerchief lawn, but the sleeves and the back of the blouse are of plain voile, cut from the flouncing used for the fronts. At the waist, there is a novel girde that is made of a bright colored ribbon, but if a finish of the material is liked, that girde can be omitted, the blouse cut a little longer and shirred to form its own girde with an extension over the skirt that is very charming on many figures. As a matter of course, any bordered materials can be used treated in just this same way, whether it is silk, cotton or linen and plain or flowered materials can be trimmed on their edges if a bordered fabric is not liked. There are lovely flowered voiles that make charming dresses after this model with the edges banded or finished with hems or hem-stitched or in any such way. Bordered lafeta and bordered foulard are pretty made exactly in this manner. White crepe de chine would be very charming with bands of black velvet ribbon for trimming or with ruffles or ruffles or with bands of the taffeta for taffeta and crepe de chine combine most charmingly. Both long and three-quarter sleeves are being worn this summer and the pattern allows a choice, but most women will prefer the long ones for this model, with the frills that fall over the hands to give an exceedingly becoming effect.

What the Cook Says The French Maid Says:

Cook says to can peas. All the can full and shake it. Do not press the peas down in the can. Pour into the cans enough cold water to fill to the brim, then screw the cover as tight as you can with your thumb and first finger. Place a cloth in the bottom of a wash boiler to prevent breakage. On this put a layer of cans. Cover the cans well with cold water, place the boiler on the fire and boil three hours without ceasing. On steady boiling depends much of your success. After boiling lift the boiler from the fire, let the water cool, take the cans from the boiler and tighten, let them remain in cold water until cool again. Wrap each can in brown paper to exclude the light and keep in a cool dry cellar.

Cook puts up delicious pickled beets and she has told me how. Wash well being careful not to break, cut or prick the beets. Boil the beets in salt water. Put in boiling water, cook until tender from one to two hours. Try by pressing with the finger. When done plunge into cold water. Then remove and when cold you can remove the skins very easily. Then slice, and to each quart of beets, add one cup of vinegar and one of water. Add one half cup of sugar, a teaspoon of whole allspice, one half teaspoon of white mustard seed, and a dozen black pepper corns. Let boil together for ten minutes. Strain thoroughly heated through. Then put in quart jars full to the brim and even running over, and seal.

This is the time, cook says, to put up blackberries for next winter. For blackberry jam, wash the berries, berries, cook them in their own juice until thoroughly heated, then press through a sieve to remove the seeds. Return the pulp to the fire, add one-half cup of amount of sugar as pulp, and boil rapidly for twenty-five minutes, stirring constantly.

For blackberry jam, weigh the berries, put them in a preserving kettle and mash well. Let them boil for twenty minutes removing any scum that rises. Add three-quarters of a pound of sugar for each pound of the berries, and let boil ten minutes, or until as thick as liked.

To spice blackberries put one cup of vinegar in a porcelain kettle with two cups of sugar, two and a half pounds of blackberries and one tablespoon each of allspice, cinnamon and cloves, tied in a bit of muslin. Bring to a boil then simmer out the blackberries, boil the syrup for one hour, put back the berries and let boil for fifteen minutes, then put in jars and cover tightly. A couple more of preserving recipes by cook will be welcome. Unwashed strawberries, she says, are delicious. Put into the preserving kettle, in layers, as many pounds of sugar as berries, washed and drained. When the juice is drawn out a little, set over the fire to cook twenty minutes after boiling commences. Turn the berries into glass jars or earthen plates, cover with panes of glass and set in the sun. Let stand, stirring two or three times each day. Store without rebottling in jars or glasses. Seal the glasses with paper caps.

Peach preserves too are tasteful. Boil in just one cup of water five minutes after boiling begins, and skim carefully. Add two pounds of peaches cut in halves and then pared. Let cook until tender, then skim out on plates and strain off the juice into the syrup as fast as it appears. Boil the syrup about twenty minutes, skimming as needed. Return the peaches to the syrup, let boil up once then store in jars. Crawl a few of the stones and cook the meal with the peaches.

In making pickles, cook advises, bring in which pickles are to be stored, should be strong enough to hold up an egg. A generous pint of coarse salt to one gallon of water is the usual proportion. Brine in which vegetables for pickles are to be kept simply over night, should be made in the proportion of one cup of salt to one gallon of water. Pickles are the strongest of the spices put into pickles and should be used less freely than mace or cinnamon. A tablespoon of cinnamon bark, eight or ten cloves, and one each of ginger root or half a teaspoon of white mustard seed, is a good proportion of spices for a quart of pickles.

Pickles put up in a stoneware or unglazed earthen jar will keep for months. The jar should be thoroughly of good quality, but it is quite well to store them in small quantities, in fruit jars, which can be closed, as in canning, and opened when wanted. In making preserves, cook says, the fruit should not be overripe as the retention of the article in perfect shape is of importance. Soft fruits should be not to cook in a rich syrup, usually from three-quarters to a full pound of sugar is used to a pound of fruit. As sugar tends to harden fruit, firm fruit, like quinces, pears and crab apples, should be cooked in water until just before it is added to the syrup. The same thing is true of citrus fruit made into marmalade. The water in which the fruit is cooked, a few pieces at a time, may be used in making the syrup. After the fruit is cooked in the syrup, this syrup may be reduced by cooking to a thicker consistency before it is poured over the fruit.

Brushes for the Kitchen

"What a lot of brushes there are in this house," said Marjorie as she picked up one brush after another in her aunt's kitchen.

"Yes," returned Marjorie, "we think it is half the daily battle against dirt to have brushes for almost everything. Of course the kitchen, getting the hardest wear and tear, needs the first and most strenuous care, though this is a matter of personal opinion, liking, habit and conditions."

"There is a brush for the painted walls and for the woodwork, a double pointed white fiber scrubbing brush. Its merit is in having the tufts of the two pointed ends longer than the rest, so as to enter well into the corners of the walls and the crevices of the woodwork."

"An extremely strong Palmetto floor scrubbing brush has long deep ribs along the sides which fit into the grooves of the floor. There is no vacuum cleaner in the universe which will take the grime and grime from a floor. The brush is so strong and well put together that it will readily withstand the constant use of water, so fatal to any bristle brush."

Other objects to be scrubbed in the kitchen as well as in all the other rooms are the window sills and sills. It is quite inconvenient to use the ordinary scrubbing brush for that purpose, and to ease that labor there is a narrow, long tufted, medium soft window brush, with a long handle. The latter helps us considerably to reach up and aside where it is difficult to go, at least seated, to the sill. The excellent soft bristle prevents the scratching of the usually light paint, and the long handle keeps the splashing of the water a safe distance from you."

A strong gray bristled hand made brush, flat top, is very serviceable and almost indispensable accessory in a kitchen, whether housecleaning or for every day use. Then there is the dearest little white square sink brush, with a scrubby solid handle and remarkably strong stiff bristles. To handle this in one good turn around the edges and corners of your sink with its snags, means a safe and span sink, a very particular corner of your kitchen."

Manicuring Methods

If the nails are not carefully watched and cared for during the present outdoor months they will become hard, brittle and ugly. During the days at the seashore or in the country the nails grow very dry and they need a little dab of cold cream each night to soften the flesh at the base of each nail. Before you start manicuring your nails the hands should be soaked in a bowl of warm water mixed with glycerine and a few drops of toilet water.

Twenty minutes is not too long for them to lie in the water, and after drying and a little cold cream has been added, any coating of superfluous flesh should be pushed back into place. After the flesh is pushed back so that the half moons show, the hands should be washed again in warm water. A tiny particle of nail rouge may be used with advantage on each finger, and the coloring matter rubbed with a good brush until the nails are pretty and pink. By rubbing one of the pretty white manicure cakes across the palm of the hand and pressing the fingers over it with a swift motion, the nails gain a fine polish and make the fingers appear as if tipped by small window panes.

Oatmeal is excellent for softening and whitening the hands. Mix some finely powdered oatmeal with water and spread on the skin as a paste. As it dries rub it off in flakes, removing the last traces with lukewarm water. An oatmeal bath may serve the purpose if one does not care to rub the flakes directly on the hands.

SLEEPYTIME TALES

KING OF THE FIREFLIES

Once upon a time the fireflies had a very hard time trying to agree on a king as they could not agree on any one fly. One of the fireflies was so angry that he decided to go away and find a king was chosen. Away he flew and stopped to see the roses and he saw a firefly. He thought that he started off again looking for adventure and soon came to a house the door of which was wide open.

Fireflies do not often go into houses, but this one was curious to see what a house looked like inside. He lighted on a table and looked around when suddenly, he espied a bunch of something which he thought might be something good to eat. So he crawled to the edge of the saucer and looked over. Then he crawled up higher for a better view and, splash, he fell in.

It was something cold and he had to keep his wings rolling very fast to keep from going in or his heart, but he never told any of them how it happened.

out of the sticky mess, and saw in a small mirror, on the table that he had changed color. As he sat there waiting for his clothes to dry he wondered how he would get home without the others seeing him as he was very much ashamed of his sticky, nasty coat.

He finally flew home very slowly and crawled in with the others hoping they would not notice his return. Just then a firefly turned and looked at him and then shouted to the others: "Look, look at this beautiful bronze fly. He must be king. He is so grand."

The bronze firefly was so surprised he couldn't say a word and the others went and brought out the crown and made him king over all. Then he realized he must be a good king and do all he could for his people. He grew so wise and was loved by the fireflies that he was called the King of the Fireflies.

THAW NEVER WAS INSANE

FOREMAN OF JURY EXPRESSES HIS OPINION—SAYS KILLING OF WHITE WAS JUSTIFIED

ATLANTIC CITY, July 19.—David Robinson, foreman of the jury which brought in a verdict before Justice Hendrick in New York county to the effect that Harry K. Thaw was sane, said in an interview here yesterday that he and the other jurymen believed Thaw was justified in killing Stanford White, because of the latter's relations with his wife.

The jury was of the opinion, he added, despite the outcome of three previous habeas corpus proceedings, that Thaw had never been insane. He talked much of the unwritten law, or as he called it, the "natural law," and the important part it played in the recent trial. Justice Hendrick charged the jury that the only question to be considered was Thaw's present mental state.

He said it had been difficult for him to take into consideration the charge by Justice Hendrick that the jury must consider Thaw legally insane at the time of the last habeas corpus hearing at West Plains before Justice Keefe in 1912.

"You can't have a hole in a man's head and force an idea into it," he said.

The interview was given in the presence of five newspaper correspondents in room 110 at the Denials hotel.

Robinson came here on Saturday night and stopped at the Denials, where Thaw and the newspaper correspondents have quarters. One of the first things he did was to hunt up Daniel W. Dean, the Thaw detective, and got into communication with Thaw. The interview was given after he had had a talk with Thaw yesterday morning.

Robinson came here partly, he said, to discuss with Thaw editorialists which he considered as reflecting on the integrity of the jury and libelous to Thaw. He took particular exception to editorialists in the New York papers published the day following Thaw's release. He said that he was going to call the jury together shortly and that resolutions would probably be adopted condemning these things.

He started off the interview by saying that he did not mind so much the suggestion in the editorial that Thaw's money had influenced the jury, but he didn't think that the editorial writers had any ground for calling Thaw a murderer, as he had been acquitted of that charge. Then this question was asked:

"Was it the view of the jury that this man never had been insane?"

"Yes we thought he had never been insane."

"Then if he never was crazy, doesn't it follow that he was guilty of murder?"

"Not at all," replied Robinson. "I have served on juries before. I was on a jury in the Smith-Rushon case in Savannah, back in the eighties, which was a good bit more famous than the Frank case. Smith killed Rushon because of the latter's lust for Smith's wife, and we acquitted Smith. It seemed to us, considering all circumstances, that that was the idea in the Thaw case."

"Did they know when you were polled as a jurymen in this case that you had served in the Smith and Rushon case?"

"No, we would not."

"You think, then, do you, that Thaw had a right to kill Stanford White?"

He was asked.

"All things considered, we did," he replied.

Robinson was asked if the contemplated action against the newspapers for libelous editorials involved libel suits.

"Oh, no," he said. "I can't tell what we will do until I can see the rest of the boys. But I should think we would pass resolutions condemning the editorials."

RESCUED DROWNING BOYS

MISS DELARONDE IN MOTORBOAT REACHED BOYS WHEN READY TO SINK

Eight boys, whose names could not be learned, narrowly escaped drowning yesterday afternoon while crossing Lake Massawippi opposite Willow Dale, and if they are living today they can thank Miss Beatrice Delaronde, who is spending the summer with her parents at their camp in Bowers avenue, as she rushed to their rescue in a motorboat.

The boys, ranging in age from 13 to 18, hired two boats of the dory type at Lakeview avenue and started out for a point known as the Sand Bar, where they were all brought to shore and a dip. One Boy Dead, Other Dying - Lowell Man Held at Manchester

MANCHESTER, N. H., July 18.—Ethan H. Bouchard, of 18 Varnum avenue, Lowell, a loonfisher, struck two children on Second street, in West Manchester, last evening while driving his automobile, inflicting injuries which caused the death of one of the children, and the other is in a hospital, with serious bruises and cuts.

Mr. Bouchard is being held at police headquarters pending an investigation. County Solicitor John R. Spring of Nashua and Medical Referee Maurice Watson having been notified.

Mr. Bouchard claims that while driving south on Second street, at a point just south of the Second street bridge over the Piscataqua river, that two children having hold of each other's hands sprang from beside the street car directly in front of the car, giving him no opportunity to stop the machine before striking them. Mrs. Bouchard was with her husband.

The children, Ronald Goudreau, aged 6 years, and Emil, aged 3 years, lived with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Goudreau, at 431 Second street. Both children were hurried to a hospital by Milton H. Lurray, who arrived upon the scene in his car just as the accident occurred. Ronald died a few minutes later. Emil, whose most serious injury is a scalp wound, is expected to recover.

Held Without Bail

Ethan H. Bouchard, of 18 Varnum avenue, this city, is being held at Manchester, N. H., county jail, pending the result of the autopsy to be performed on the body of Ronald Goudreau, a nine-year-old boy, who it is alleged, was instantly killed by Mr. Bouchard's automobile last night. Mr. Bouchard expected to be arraigned in court this morning to answer a complaint of manslaughter, but the arraignment was delayed pending the result of the autopsy and the Lowell man is being held without bail.

When Mrs. Goudreau, mother of the children, was informed of the accident she became prostrated and her condition is also regarded as serious. Mr. Bouchard, who was in the machine when the accident occurred, but she was soon revived.

Ronald Goudreau, the boy who was killed, had received communion in the morning and by a strange coincidence the same priest who gave the boy communion in the morning was the first to reach him after the accident.

AUTOIST SERIOUSLY HURT

BIDDEFORD, Me., July 18.—When George W. Mitchell, aged 30, a carpenter of this city, who was driving a runabout, attempted to avoid a collision with a big touring car on the Kennebunk road yesterday, his car was ditched and demolished.

Mr. Mitchell, who was thrown some distance, struck on his head and shoulder and it is said his spine is injured.

Howard Burnham, who was with Mr. Mitchell, was thrown from the car and three ribs were broken. His body was also cut and bruised.

H., yesterday morning. Whalen owns the machine.

INDUSTRIAL and STORE NEWS

Local 513, Polish Textile Workers of this city, held an open meeting at its rooms, 32 Middle street yesterday afternoon for the purpose of promoting the interests of delinquency. Despite the warm weather the affair was largely attended and proved a success. The speaker of the afternoon was Stanislas J. Dwyer, of Boston, a graduate of the Boston University Law school, and editor of a Lithuanian newspaper, who spoke in praise of the advantages to be derived by the aid of the American Federation of Labor. The speaker proved very interesting, and at the close of his address a single bottle of Dwyer's Plaster and Cholesterol Syrup will do it taken in time.

CALLED TO WASHINGTON

SEC. LANSING SUMMONED CONSIDER GEN. SHANKLIN FROM MEXICO FOR CONFERENCE

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Secretary of State Lansing has withdrawn Consul Gen. Arnold Shanklin from Mexico because of difficulties he has had with the Brazilian minister, who is handling American interests.

Mr. Shanklin is to leave Mexico City for Vera Cruz today and will sail immediately for the United States. As soon as he arrives in Washington, Sec. Lansing will discuss the general Mexican situation with him and receive his version of the trouble with the Brazilian minister.

TO AVOID FRICTION

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Arnold Shanklin, American consul-general in Mexico City, is on his way to Washington, under orders from the state department to report upon conditions. This was stated officially today, and incidentally it was admitted that Mr. Shanklin had been withdrawn temporarily from duty in Mexico City to avoid continuation of friction with Senator Cardozo, the Brazilian minister there.

Last week Mr. Shanklin went to the Mexican capital to carry on Red Cross relief work. Some differences as to methods developed between the consul-general and the Brazilian minister. They were not serious but as Senator Cardozo has been for many months looking after American interests in a manner so thorough and satisfactory as to win the gratitude of the state department officials they regarded it as only proper to remove any causes of friction quite regardless of the merits of the question.

CARRANZA VICTORY CONFIRMED

WASHINGTON, July 18.—State department despatches from Nogales confirm earlier reports of the forces of Carranza troops over Villa forces at Anavacachi, Sonora.

The triumphant forces took possession of Cananea.

American Consul Silliman reported the arrival of large quantities of food at Vera Cruz and that wireless communication between Vera Cruz and Mexico City probably would be established today by means of the new station at Chapultepec installed by Gen. Carranza.

Food conditions in the capital are described by a Red Cross report received today. Dated July 1, it says more than 100,000 women on the previous day applied to the international committee for food tickets. Only 40,000 were available.

There formerly 200 people a day went to the slaughter house to get the meat that is saved and given away. The report says that there are now 2000 daily besieging the gates. Near there the other day 20 people were seen struggling to get pieces of a dead horse.

THE PAWTUCKET BRIDGE

JACKSON PALMER CALLS ATTENTION OF THE MUNICIPAL COUNCIL TO CHARTER OF 1792

Jackson Palmer, candidate for mayor, has a word to say about the proposed bridge at Pawtucket falls and has addressed the following communication to the municipal council:

To the Members of the Municipal Council:

Gentlemen:—In connection with the proposed extension of the Pawtucket bridge, I desire to call to the attention of the municipal council the possibility of lessening the expense to the taxpayers.

According to the present plan, a part of the roadway over the Northern canal is to be widened. Unless some contract right, undisclosed to the average citizen, exists between the city and the proprietors of the Locks and Canals, this part of the expense should be assumed by the said proprietors.

I refer you to the charter of 1792, and quote section 5 of same: "And he who further erected by the authority of the city shall be liable for the cost of the construction of the said undertaking to make a canal across any public highway, or of any highway shall be liable for the cost of any such canal, it shall be the duty of the said proprietors to make and maintain in good repair a sufficient bridge over the said canal."

This charter obligation has never been annulled by legislative enactment so far as I can trace. The same obligation exists at common law.

I also desire to call to the attention of the city government, the fact that many other highway bridges exist over the city in this city. I suggest that the city should be relieved of the burden of maintaining bridges forced upon it by the enterprise of a private corporation, a burden in the past water is taking.

A man in the Highlands has the highest admiration for the cuckoo in his clock because, he says, it is the only thing that dares to butt in while his wife is talking.

A Boston couple lived together 52 years without speaking to each other. Eventually mother never heard the breakfast and father never came home from a poker party at 3 a. m.

Fifty dollars for a speech at the high school graduation exercises is a good price when so many others present seemed willing to talk all night for nothing.

There was a fire at Nantasket beach last Thursday and Chief Seider, who was there with the Knights of Columbus, could not resist the temptation to go to it.

Ten thousand gallons of oil will be used on the village roads in Westford. Two trucks have arrived in Westford Saturday and commenced to oil the streets in the center of the town.

It is nothing unusual to see Commissioner Morse riding about the city in his automobile. He was out on the morning. Charlie always was an early riser. Perhaps somebody who gets up earlier might see him at 6 o'clock on these fine mornings.

ing a gambling resort and 12 fellow countrymen accompanied him for being present where gaming implements were found. Apostolokos was adjudged guilty of the offence and ordered to pay a fine of $75. The other 12 paid fines of $10 each.

His Honor stated that the gambling resort among these people had reached such a point that many of their families are starving for want of bread and he would do his part to stop it.

Six other men taken from a Market street building early Sunday morning were in court accused of being present at a game on the Lord's day. Through their attorney, John J. McClure, they pleaded guilty and were ordered to contribute five dollars each to the court's fund.

Carrying a Pistol

Charged with carrying a loaded pistol at Primrose hill, Draught, George Hassan was hauled into court and pleaded guilty. He was represented by William A. Hogan. A Draught officer testified that the defendant got off a electric car at Primrose hill Saturday night and during an argument displayed the gun. The weapon was produced in court and was one of the most modern of its kind. A fine of $50 was imposed.

Liquor Case

Unlawfully keeping liquor with intent to sell was the complaint preferred against Alfred Lafrance of Chelmsford who was arrested yesterday by Constable Richardson of that town. Lafrance pleaded guilty and offered as an excuse the fact that he had been blind for six years and took this means of supporting himself. He has been convicted for the illegal sale of liquor in the local court before. It was stated. Fifty dollars more was added to the day's contributions by the fine imposed.

Sentenced to Jail

John O'Donnell, the youth who created the disturbance with the team Saturday night, was found guilty of drunkenness and unlawfully taking a team belonging to Leslie S. Peavey. After the story of the affair had been related to the court by Patrolman Winn and Connors and Mr. Peavey, Judge Knight imposed a three months' jail sentence for the larceny of a team and a month additional for the third offence for drunkenness.

George Lavigne of this city and Arthur Martin of Beverly decided to join the 101 Ranch circus last Friday and started out with the crew from this city at night. They soon got tired of the unsettled life, however, and after a half day agreed to quit and return to Lowell. Having no money, the crew refused to let them go and reached Western avenue in safety but soon found themselves in the hands of Patrolman Drevett. They pleaded guilty in court today to complaints charging them with unlawfully riding on a freight car. Larvee was ordered to pay a fine of $10 and Martin was laid down in 1938. Her complaint was $500 men. She was armed with one 10-inch, two 8-inch, fourteen 6-inch and ten 3-inch guns.

TWO AUSTRIAN SUBMARINES WITH CREWS OF 60 MEN REPORTED LOST

PARIS, July 19, 5.50 a. m.—A telegram from a Rome news agency says that a refugee who has reached Rome from Pola, the Austrian naval base, states that two Austrian submarines which left to reconnoiter the Italian coast are believed to have been lost. One had a crew of 20; the other forty.

Russian headquarters declares that the German offensive is checked, though admitting small successes by the enemy that caused a rearrangement toward the Narew river.

Moscow reports that an ultimatum to Romania from Germany and Austria is in preparation demanding unimpeded path to Turkey.

British report the re-capture of ground lost to the Germans north of Ypres.

Gortzia bombarded by the Italians from the north and to have suffered from the attack of two Italian warships.

Another Liquor Case

Pelagat Sullivan of 163-155 Adams street, who has been convicted several times in the local court for the illegal sale of liquor, will be summoned into court tomorrow on Wednesday as a result of an alleged sale of whiskey made by her to a member of the police department yesterday. A small quantity of whiskey was also seized and many empty bottles were found about the house.

Supt. Welch claims that a police officer seated himself on the front steps of Mrs. Sullivan's house early yesterday morning. When a roomy appeared in the door the officer, in the guise of a laborer, asked where he could purchase a drink. The man in the door suggested that the "stranger" give him the money and he would secure the liquor, but this was not satisfactory and it was finally arranged for the officer to meet Mrs. Sullivan. Both went inside and it is claimed purchased liquor. Inspectors appeared on the scene immediately afterward.

LATE WAR NEWS

line from the Baltic to the Dniester. Gen. von Buelow who was on the left of Gen. von Kluck in the first invasion of France, now commands the extreme left of the German advance toward Riga, which is being conducted by cavalry on a scale exceeding anything heretofore during the war.

Berlin claims a steady advance and Petrograd concedes an advance after the Russian forces had made a stubborn contest.

On von Buelow's right is Gen. von Elch Horn who is being held up by the great Russian fortress of Ossovo. On von Elch Horn's right is Gen. von Gallwitz, whose name appears for the first time in large operations. After capturing Prazysny he is now pressing the German attack on the Narva river and its tributaries.

On the famous Rawa and Bzura lines there is comparative quiet, which is also reflected on the southwest side of Warsaw, but to the southeast the movement against Lublin, which was temporarily checked, is again in full swing.

The Russians must fight a defensive battle for the possession of Warsaw or abandon all of Poland. The Germans are considered undoubtedly to prefer the first issue hence the Russians in the opinion of many military observers, are likely to attempt a complete withdrawal with their armies intact. These tremendous activities by the Germans in the east suggest that they have little reserve left to devote to the western campaign, which offers the entente allies a respite either for the completion of munition supplies or a concerted attempt to capture Lille.

Another view holds that the best service her allies could give Russia at this time would be the forcing of the Dardanelles. It is possible that the allies may combine both suggested attempts, but it is unquestionable that for the time the centre of gravity in the war has shifted to eastern Europe.

The western front continues quiet without a sign of any new development. The Italians report some progress in the mountains east of Trento where the invaders are now striking towards one of the two railroads serving Austria's Trenting forces.

The South Wales coal strike situation continues serious with the belief growing that the only solution lies in government operation of the mines during the period of the war.

ITALIAN WARSHIP FOUNDERED 15 MINUTES AFTER SUBMARINE ATTACK

BERLIN, July 19, via wireless to Saville, L. L.—The following official communication was received here today from Vienna, dated July 18: "An Austrian submarine this morning torpedoed and sank, south of Ragusa, the Italian cruiser Giuseppe Garibaldi. The cruiser foundered within 15 minutes."

The Giuseppe Garibaldi was an armored cruiser of 7241 tons displacement. She was 116 feet long and was laid down in 1908. Her complement was 550 men. She was armed with one 10-inch, two 8-inch, fourteen 6-inch and ten 3-inch guns.

DUMMER ST. EXTENSION

Mr. Dempsey Wants $25,000 Land Damages - Hearing Was Held Today

A hearing having to do with property values in connection with the proposed extension of Dummer street from Merrimack to Market streets was held in the mayor's reception room at city hall this forenoon.

George C. Dempsey was present at the hearing, representing George C. and William C. Dempsey, trustees, and George C. Dempsey and Patrick Keyes, lessees. He explained that it is not a question of money with himself or the parties he represented; that if the city could make the proposed extension and leave his property as good as in the beginning there would be no charge. But if plans spoken of are carried out it would cost the city somewhere in the vicinity of $25,000. The city could either pay that amount or put up a new building. He referred to the amount spoken of for the Kelly property, $5000 for 577 square feet, over $50 per square foot, and said that in his opinion the price named would mean about $2.55 a foot. It was explained that Mr. Kelly would lose more than half his tenants if the proposed plans carried and Mr. Dempsey said he did not think that $5000 was too much to allow for the Kelly property and he would have it very thoroughly understood that assessed values do not cut any ice. He said that assessed values do not agree with market prices. That assessed values simply represent the most equitable way in which the assessors can get at the amount of money necessary to keep the city going. He suggested that in the event of his present place of business being put out of commission by the extension, that the city erect a building for him on a lot near his present building or build a new one. He said the lot was pretty small, 30x60 feet, but he allowed that the necessary space might be acquired by going high enough in the air. He said that the disturbance in his business would mean a great deal to him, but he wanted the council strictly to understand that he did not seek to make any money out of the city. No definite action was taken and Mr. Dempsey told the mayor and commissioners that in the event of anything new arising he would be willing and glad to discuss it with them.

The evening parade at 6.45 o'clock was the one grandest of the day and considering the hard march and the work in detaining and making camp, the work of the men well earned the praise showered upon them by all the judges present.

The review was complimentary to Gen. E. Leroy Sweetser, who was accompanied by Councilor Keith. Col. Logan was in command during the march and during the irregular spacing between companies during the parade in review, the ceremony was as near perfect as could be expected from a lot of tired soldiers.

Monday's schedule is as follows: Morning, calisthenics; immediately after reveille, instructions of companies in the use of cover; afternoon, tactical ride for field officers; practical work for the officers; battalion parade of Second battalion.

LAYING NEW SIDEWALK REVERE BEACH, MASS.

The work of laying granite sidewalks in Central and Merrimack streets was begun by the Lowell Cement Brick Co., at St. Anne's church this morning where the old brick sidewalk is being torn up. Sometime ago the city engineer addressed communications to property owners in Central and Merrimack streets, where there were old brick sidewalks, asking them if they would enter into an agreement for the removal of the old sidewalks and the installation of granite sidewalks, the abutters to pay one half and the city the other half of the expense. Favorable replies were received from most of the property owners with the result that new sidewalk involving some 2500 square yards. The Lowell Cement Brick company was the contractor. The company in question bid $1.43 per square yard.

MAY STRIKE TOMORROW

Leaders in Charge of Situation at Bridgeport Fail to Hear From Mysterious New Yorker

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., July 19.—Labor leaders in charge of the strike situation in Bridgeport announced this afternoon that they had failed to hear from the New Yorker who on Saturday requested the postponement of the calling out of the machinists employed by the Remington Arms & Ammunition Co.

"If we do not hear from this man by 4 o'clock this afternoon," said J. J. Keppeler, international vice president of the Machinists' union, "we will have to believe that the negotiations have failed. In that event the men will probably be called out tomorrow, 24 hours after the time originally set for the beginning of the strike."

Simultaneously with the announcement came another of equal importance from the secretary of the Bridgeport Manufacturers' Association to the effect that at a meeting today the manufacturers had determined to stand as a body behind the Remington Arms & Ammunition Co. in its decision to run an open shop. The action was, it was said in the announcement, taken after the manufacturers had been addressed by Daniel Davenport, once affiliated with counsel for the National Association of Manufacturers and now counsel for the American Anti-Boycott association.

Mr. Davenport himself denied that he had addressed the manufacturers. He said that he had merely conferred with some of them on a legal question.

When advised of the announcement made by the Manufacturers' Association, Mr. Keppeler said that so far the establishment of a closed shop at the plant of the Remington Arms & Ammunition Co. had not been demanded. He added, however, that the action of the Manufacturers' Association, complicates the situation still further.

DROWNED WHILE BATHING

ANNISQUAM, July 15.—Rev. Arthur H. Pingree, pastor of the Congregational church of Norwood, and Miss Helen Perkins of the same town were drowned while bathing here today.

Mr. Pingree had charge of a party of campfire girls from Norwood who, with two chaperones, were occupying his summer cottage at Pigeon Cove. A number of them came here for a swim and two girls went beyond their depth. Mr. Pingree rescued one but became exhausted in trying to bring Miss Perkins ashore. Both bodies were recovered. Mr. Pingree was 35 years old and Miss Perkins 16.

LOWELL IN LEAD

Another thunder shower threatened to put today's game with Worcester to the test, coming along about noon, but happily spilling park dries up quickly and hence there was no necessity for a postponement. The local players were red hot for another game against Worcester for they all appeared to be imbued with the "Nothing can stop us" spirit, a great factor in the makeup of a successful baseball team.

Manager Kelchner had another little heart-to-heart talk with the members of the team this morning, telling them their weak points and pointing out the way to improvement. He has a most gentlemanly way of dealing with his players which is bound to get the best out of them. Speaking of the manner in which the fans panned Shorty Dee for his errors in Saturday's game, Mr. Kelchner said: "The fan seldom stops to consider how small a mark the infelicitous has to pick at. Incidents in all the leagues will make bad throws at times. They can't stop to think of them. Speaking of the way the team is going under the new management and so are the fans."

The batteries for today were: Lowell, Zieser and Ahern; Worcester, Johnson and Carroll. Empire Harry Aubrey officiated.

Zieser opened up rather rocky for Lowell, giving four bases on balls in three innings. Worcester scored a run in the first inning when McSherry, the first man up for Worcester, received a pass and went to second on Carroll's slow grounder to first. A passed ball sent him to third and he scored on McMahon's single over second base. McMahon stole second and he went to

HARRY NUTTING KILLED CHILDREN WHILE THEY SLEPT AND THEN ATTACKED WIFE WHO OVERPOWERED HIM AFTER DESPERATE STRUGGLE — NUTTING ARRESTED AND HELD WITHOUT BAIL

Harry Nutting, a well known elder maker of Groton, shot and killed his son Everett and daughter Louise this morning at his home, and later attempted to level the gun at his wife's head, but was prevented by the wife, who wrestled with him and finally disarmed him. Nutting was later arrested and arraigned in the district court at Ayer, charged with the murder of his son and daughter. His case was continued for a week, he being held without bail and sent to the county jail at East Cambridge.

The double murder was committed early this morning, while the two victims were sleeping soundly in their respective rooms at the Nutting home. According to Mrs. Nutting's story, she was awakened at 4.30 o'clock by the report of a gun in an adjoining room, followed almost immediately by a second shot. The woman said she rushed out of her room and met her husband in the hall with a rifle in his hands. Before he could level it at her she grabbed the weapon and after a time succeeded in getting it away from him. An investigation about the other rooms disclosed a horrible tragedy. Everett Nutting, a son of the alleged murderer, was found lying in bed with a bullet wound over his eye, while his sister, Louise, was also found in her room, shot through the ear. The chief of police of Groton was quickly notified and before Nutting could make his escape, the town official placed him under arrest. The prisoner was hurriedly removed to the district jail at Ayer, and, although he was questioned about the deed, he refused to make any statement.

Everett Nutting was 21 years of age and was employed by his father, while the girl, Louise, was 15 years old and was employed by the town as a school teacher. Some of the neighbors stated Nutting had been considered slightly deranged for some time.

Nutting was taken into the district court at Ayer shortly before noon, and at the request of both the prosecution and the defense, the case was continued for a week. The prisoner was held without bail and sent to the county jail at East Cambridge.

TWO GERMAN ATTACKS REPULSED BY FRENCH

Casualties of Dardanelles Expeditionary Force 42,434 — Expect Early Settlement of South Wales Strike — Italian Warship Sunk

Paris reports two attacks by the Germans, both of which were repulsed. One of these was in the vicinity of Souchez and another in the region of St. Hubert in the Artois. There were only outpost encounters in Lorraine and artillery play on French trenches in Belgium. Inactivity prevailed along the remainder of the front.

Dardanelles Casualties
Official figures announced in London show the total casualties of the Dardanelles expeditionary force to date to be 42,434 officers and men killed, wounded and missing. Casualties among officers were 5934 of whom 1233 were killed.

To Settle Mine Strike
The South Wales coal strike is believed in London to be on the verge of settlement. Plans embodying complete resumption of work by the miners, whose demands would be temporarily conceded, they agreeing to abide by the final decision of either the munitions court or Walter Runciman, president of the board of trade.

David Lloyd-George will go to the coal fields and use his influence with the men for a settlement.

Italian Warship Sunk
The Italian armored cruiser, Giuseppe Garibaldi, has been torpedoed and sunk in the Adriatic by an Austrian submarine. It is officially reported from Vienna. The destroyed warship, which displaced 2334 tons and had a complement of 550 men, was laid down 17 years ago.

Albion Gain Ground
News despatches from Athens report hard fighting on the Gallipoli peninsula with the forces of the entente allies attacking along the whole front. The attacks are said to have been successful, but there is no definite news as to the extent of the ground reported to have been gained.

Great Teutonic Move
Related despatches from the Russian front tell of the recent concentration of great Austro-German forces on the 100-mile line between the Vistula and the Bug. It is here that severe pressure is now being put by Field Marshal von Mackensen upon the Russian forces in the great Teutonic move against the armies of the Grand Duke Nicholas, which has brought forth simultaneous attacks all along the front from the Baltic provinces to Bessarabia. Russia's army opposing Gen. von Mackensen is declared to be one of the best she ever put into the field.

Boston Man Has Plan to Save Ships From Submarine Attacks

BOSTON, July 18.—Ewen Clark of 416 Winthrop avenue, Revere, a Boston real estate man, has developed two devices to protect ships against submarines and torpedoes. Mr. Clark has sent details of his two plans to the British Admiralty and to the United States navy officials. The latter reported that war naval experts were working on schemes very similar to those worked out by Mr. Clark.

One of the devices is designed to protect a single ship against other submarines or torpedoes, but most especially the latter. Mr. Clark acknowledges that his device would retard the progress of the boat to some extent, but states that he intends it for use on large, slow-moving boats, such as transports and supply ships.

It consists of a number of outposts radiating from the hull of the vessel. On the ends of the outposts are wheels, ever which run a heavy chain. Midway between the ends of the posts and the hull is a similar arrangement of wheels and chain, but with the wheels revolving in the opposite direction. The passage of the vessel through the water causes the outer and inner chains to turn in opposite directions. To each of the chains is hitched a heavy net, which is really a series of small, square nets, each so arranged that if a torpedo or submarine strikes it it will immediately close up like a bag, imprisoning the torpedo or submarine.

As the two nets are constantly operating in opposite directions, should a submarine or torpedo by any chance succeed in slipping through the meshes of the first net it will be stopped by the second.

The other device is intended to safeguard a flotilla of ships, or a single ship conveyed by submarines or torpedoes. It consists of the same sort of net hitched to steel buoys which keep the upper end afloat. The length of the net and its depth would depend entirely on the exigencies of the occasion.

For the protection of a single vessel two of these buoyed nets are lowered by tugs or submarines, which sail either side and slightly in advance of the vessel to be protected. The nets, floating far astern of the towing vessels, protect the vessel sailing between and astern of the towing ships.

To protect a flotilla every vessel is fitted with one of the nets, while two submarines, heading and flanking the flotilla, are also fitted with them.

Instead of nets the floats may be used with thin steel plates, with similar results.

Pres. Roe Urges Change at Congress — Calls Chicago Cleanest City

SAN FRANCISCO, July 18.—Addressing delegates to the ninth international purity congress today, Clifford G. Roe of Chicago, president of the American Bureau of Moral Education, appointed by President Wilson as American delegate to the congress, proposed a new purity plan.

"In the past," he said, "our efforts have been largely centered upon the school teacher, the doctor, the lawyer and the minister. Our plan is to bring the facts before the great masses of the people—the farmer, the business man and the laborer. The message of purity, therefore, is not only preached today from the pulpit, but likewise from the bannister and lecture platform and in club rooms and auditoriums of great commerce associations."

Mr. Roe said he believed Chicago is today morally the cleanest metropolitan city in the world, which condition was brought about by "an aroused public sentiment—a quickened moral conscience—a deeper and truer conviction concerning the responsibility of citizenship."

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS VICTORY FOR CARRANZA

FORCES UNDER GEN. CALLES DEFEAT VILLA ARMY AT AUGUA PRIETA

DOUGLAS, Ariz., July 19.—After a six-hour battle at Anavachi pass, west of Augua Prieta, General Calles' Carranza commander in Sonora, was reported late yesterday to have decisively defeated Villa troops under General Jose Maria Acosta. The Calles force was said to have numbered 3000, while Acosta's was reported as half that number.

In a message received yesterday by Aguadilla, command for Carranza, from General Calles at Lamorita, 20 miles west of Augua Prieta, the Villa troops were reported as fleeing in all directions.

The message stated that the battle began at 6 o'clock yesterday morning. The Villa forces were strongly entrenched in the pass and for five hours held out against cannon and rapid fire guns.

During the fighting 300 of Acosta's men, deserted to Calles, who estimated the Villa dead, wounded and captured at 500. Calles did not report his own casualties, though they were claimed to be relatively small by officials in Augua Prieta. According to Garduno, Gen. Calles intended to press forward to Carranza, as soon as he received ammunition, which left Augua Prieta yesterday.

Villa representatives here today refused to admit defeat, saying that the battle still continued.

WESTBROOK CONFESSES

MAN WHO REPORTED FINDING 20 STICKS OF DYNAMITE INVENTED STORY TO GET REWARD

READING, Pa., July 19.—Harry F. Westbrook, who last week reported that he had found a piece of pipe containing 20 sticks of dynamite on the Pennsylvania railroad track near Altoona, Pa., was arrested here last night and today, according to the police, confessed he had invented the story in the hope of getting a reward.

BABY ON BOWERS AVENUE

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Delarondo of 1234 Lake street, this city, who are spending the summer at their camp in Bowers avenue, Willow Dale, are removing over the birth of a daughter, the child in the family, who was born July 12. The child was delivered yesterday afternoon at St. Louis' rectory and was given the names of Maria Dorothy, the spouses being Thomas Anthony and Miss Delarondo.

According to the people who have been living in that vicinity for years, little Dorothy Delarondo is the first child to be born in Bowers avenue since Italian times, which dates back probably two centuries. That part of Willow Dale is in Fyneshore and there is nothing on the town books to show that a childbirth ever occurred in that part, so the new arrival adds the distinction of being the first white child born on Bowers avenue on the shores of Lake Michigan.

Becker, convicted of the murder of Herman Rosenthal, a gambler, has been sentenced to die on July 28. The murder of Rosenthal and the subsequent trial of Becker attracted national attention. Becker's lawyers say that he was convicted on the perjured testimony of thieves and gun men. In the accompanying illustration are shown Becker, Rosenthal, the man for whose murder he has been sentenced to die, and the death chamber at Sing Sing, showing the death chair.

THE LUMBER INDUSTRY HEARING AT CHICAGO TO DEVELOP AMERICA'S FOREIGN COMMERCE

CHICAGO, July 19.—First-hand information concerning conditions in the lumber manufacturing industry in the United States was presented to members of the federal trade commission, which opened a two days' hearing here today.

Saw mill owners, wholesale dealers, timber land owners and representatives of lumber associations supplied the commissioners with data on conditions. The hearings are a part of a nationwide series arranged toward developing America's foreign commerce. On Wednesday the commission will hold a session in Detroit, on Thursday in Cincinnati and on Friday in Indianapolis, returning to Chicago on Monday to resume its inquiry.

Later sessions will be held in many of the large cities of the west to the Pacific coast.

In outlining the purposes of the hearing, Edward N. Hurley of Chicago, vice chairman of the commission, said:

"In the judgment of the best business brains of this country there never has been so favorable an opportunity for American commerce to seek and find foreign markets for its products as at this juncture."

"With the prospect in view of getting the facts regarding our foreign trade possibilities the commission has entered upon this investigation. The market is there and we must develop it."

President Downman gave the commission a statement of conditions in the industry, which he represents, in which he said that the last eight years has been a period of "demoralization."

"Practically little or no profit has been made," Mr. Downman said. At present an actual loss in the business is occurring, not only for profits, but an unavoidable, but nevertheless shameful waste of forest resources.

The railroads, one of the largest consumers of lumber, have not been in the market normally since 1907. The export business, which consumed ten per cent. of the production, has practically ceased on account of the war. In the summer of 1914 building operations stopped by reason of financial conditions.

"All of these, coupled with uncontrolled output, contribute to produce the demoralizing conditions that have existed for a long period. Prices have gone to pieces, wage scales have been universally reduced and bankruptcies have overtaken many individuals in the industry."

Mr. Downman submitted data from commercial agencies, economists, the census reports and the forest review service in support of his representations.

NEW LOBSTER LAW IN MAINE

AUGUSTA, Me., July 19.—Commissioner Henry Woodbury of the state sea and shore fisheries is of the opinion that the lobster law passed by the last legislature will be of great help in the protection of the industry. The law became operative July 2. There is a provision attached to the law which gives all those engaged in the lobster business 30 days' grace to secure licenses.

The legal length of lobsters that can be taken in Maine remains 4 1/2 inches from nose to the beginning of the tail and is known as bone measurement. It is said that this measurement favors the fisherman over the old 10-inch law, to the extent of a dozen to 15 lobsters in every 100.

All the beaches, parks, rivers and summer places that offered relief yesterday were thronged.

FIELD FOR LEATHER TICKETS. LYNN, July 19.—Following an investigation of a long series of leather thefts at the shoe factories here, the police had under arrest yesterday Matthew Connell, president of the Matthew Connell Co., dealers in leather remnants, and Edward Dillon. Bechard was thrown from his machine and had a narrow escape from serious injury. He sustained cuts about the face and bruises on his legs and body.

The accident occurred about 11.30 o'clock yesterday forenoon. The cyclist was proceeding along Aiken street toward Merrimack street at a moderate rate of speed. Mr. Johnston was driving on Moody street toward Pawtucketville and crashed into Bechard near the traffic sign at the corner.

The driver of the motorcycle was picked up in a semi-conscious condition and taken into the Chase drugstore, where his injuries were treated. The motorcycle, which was badly damaged, was taken to a garage for repairs.

ASSERTION, NOT DISCUSSION

The underlying difference between the American and German position in the situation that has arisen since the sinking of the Lusitania is that Germany wants to discuss the question and drag out the diplomatic exchanges until the original grievance is almost lost sight of while this country wants to get a prompt guarantee that its rights will be respected in future. Germany is handling the matter with an eye to its possible effect on the present war; The United States refuses to be made a party to any German war policy, and insists that American rights shall be as binding on all nations as they were before the war started. Germany wishes our officials to see the German point of view, hoping to score a diplomatic triumph over England. America refuses to consider the question with any third party involved. From our standpoint the issue is plain, and it is the same issue as existed the day that the Lusitania was sunk.

It is therefore certain that the note to be sent to Germany in a day or so will ignore the bargain offered made by Germany and assert the American stand more firmly than ever. This nation will refuse to become an intermediary between Great Britain and Germany in this instance, much as President Wilson would like to officiate in the name of peace. He and his advisers see that what is urged as a humanitarian measure is in reality a crafty attempt to land up the American question so that in future it could not be considered except in reference to the entire war situation. Moreover, Germany suspects that England would refuse to moderate its food blockade, and so pro-German sentiment might be created in this country. It would be a strange situation if by yielding to the wishes of German diplomats, this government carried out the private desires of the German war office.

On the other hand, it cannot be affirmed that the United States inclines towards England in refusing Germany's offers, for we have our separate and distinct grievances towards England, and they will be handled separately and distinctly. The complaints arising out of cargo detentions and prize court decisions or protracted deliberations are now being weighed at Washington, and a special message to England is being prepared. President Wilson and Secretary Lansing have developed qualities of statesmanship that baffle the crafty designs of foreign diplomats, and they have shown the happy faculty of putting aside extraneous influences and getting to the hub of the question under discussion.

As negotiations progress, however, the conviction grows stronger that there will be a satisfactory ending, without the danger of war. The assertion of rights which Washington will formulate and send presently may be the last note, and the reply may be as unsatisfactory, but still the situation would not be critical. It is unbelievable that the German government should invite war with us in its present circumstances, and a crisis could be averted by the solicitude of Germany to see that we shall have no further cause for complaint. It is very significant that since the American protest after the loss of the Lusitania, there has been an end to the outrages on American vessels, and while Germany has made no declaration of a change of policy, its actions have spoken louder than words. We may consistently hope for a continuation of peace, without the surrender of one iota of America's rights by our vigilant and prudent government.

SAFETY FIRST

One might preach the doctrine of "safety first" for fifty-one weeks in the year but for every day of the last week the papers would tell of glaring instances of neglect of the slogan. The human element has to be reckoned with in this as in most things, and many human beings seem to deliberately court danger rather than observe the ordinary rules of caution at all times. Not an hour of the day but is fraught with preventable danger, and some thoughtless individual pays the penalty of carelessness continually. The papers of Saturday had two instances that serve as an admirable illustration of that fact.

Friday night a woman in Woburn was going down the stairs of her home with her 15-month-old son under her arm and a lamp in the other hand. At the top of the stairs she tripped and fell headlong. As a result the woman was fatally injured, the baby was seriously injured and the house was set on fire. There is no need to belabor the disregard of "safety first" that this illustrates but many that are heedless of the consequences of the woman would immediately go on or down stairs with a lamp, and possibly carry a baby at the same time, and the bargain. Human nature is much the same in Lowell as in Woburn, and the rules of ordinary safety and sanity apply in both places.

The other instance is typical of another type of accident. A chauffeur 24 years of age who was taking a walk on Sillsbury beach found an unexpected bomb that had been used in a recent display of fireworks. Wishing to see it act, he lit the fuse with a match and was almost blown to pieces. He is in the hospital with slight chances for his recovery, and if he does recover, he may be permanently blind. Those who experiment with cartridges and such things found on dumps and rifle ranges are not usually of years of age, but here again human nature is the same everywhere, and the same curiosity is a deadly foe to the principle of "safety first." If only all persons would use the thought section of their brains immediately before the accident instead of afterwards, what a safe world it would be! Always remember: "Safety first."

ANOTHER STRIKE AVERTED

A wave of strike agitation has swept the country of late and while in some instances strikes have been averted, many have materialized only to submit in a short time to the principle of arbitration. Last Wednesday the entire car service of Providence, R. I., and vicinity was crippled and for a few days an intolerable situation prevailed. Press and public demanded a speedy solution, and early on Saturday morning service was restored while both parties agreed to arbitrate. The agreement followed an all-night session between the president of the company and representatives of the strikers, and finally a plan suggested by Mayor Gahner was accepted. The mayor will be one of the arbitration board of three members.

It is to be expected that in a little while a settlement will be arrived at, and while it may not entirely satisfy either side, it will restore good service to the people and prevent a long labor war that would bring suffering and class hatred in its train. Without arbitration such a speedy solution of the problem would be impossible, and as the main issue at the present time is the restoration of the public service, the result is most gratifying. The more one reads of strikes and comes in touch with their effect on all concerned, the more does arbitration shine out as the only safe way to avert them at the present time. It is also significant that the Rhode Island company both in its officials and employees agreed to arbitrate so soon after the finding of the Boston board which was not favorably received by Lawyer Vahey and a few others. Any agitation against arbitration is not in the best interest of labor.

HENRY JAMES, ENGLISH

It is said that Henry James the great American novelist is about to give up his American citizenship as a protest against the indifference of America to the cause of the allies. He thinks that Germany has so grossly violated the rights of humanity that America should more thoroughly condemn German acts and side with the allies. If Henry James is to take this stand as a means of creating sentiment favorable to his views in this country, he is not as astute as his books would lead us to believe. Mr. James, like many another American, has chosen to live most of his life in England, and the English public have given him a greater recognition than his own country. Undoubtedly he has acquired the English habit of mind in many things. Still we cannot understand why he would renounce his American citizenship for anything that any other nation can bestow. It is his own business, and we have no right to complain, but having waited until he is old, it seems a pity that he should so grossly misunderstand the motives of a land which gave him a freedom which he will vainly seek elsewhere for the few years that remain to him. Henry James was born in 1843 and has resided in England since 1885. He is undoubtedly more of an Englishman than an American, but he should see that the duty of this country lies along the lines of neutrality while American citizens have a right to think as they please.

A CAGED BIRD

Jacob Learner arrived in this country last Tuesday on the Celtic, having left the Jewish settlement in the Russian pale. An authority in the person of a physician of the public health service, stopped in and forbade his entrance. Jacob was not well and there was a possibility that he would become a burden on the country. On Friday a special board of three inspectors examined him and it was decided that he was in failing health, and that he must go back to his home. Finally one of the inspectors told him if he could do anything to support himself, "I can show you how," said Jacob. The inspectors were moved, and Jacob was asked to show them a beautiful flower, a song of a peasant, a picture of a sorrow could impart to a child, the immigrant stationer who had saved all his money to come to America and stay. No more was asked.

ANOTHER VICTIM

In the death of little Michael McLarin, the toll of the canal victims in this city is swelled by another victim and the demand for protection becomes more and more imperative. There is no public apathy on this question, but were the city aroused as it ought to be, the population of Lowell would speedily demand some action by the municipal authorities and private corporations to prevent this needless and discouraging loss of life annually. As the canals are at present, we can only hope that chance will protect the children, and it is worthy of note that most of the late drownings have been at spots that have claimed many victims for the past twenty years. The system of fencing in the canal and river banks is as unsatisfactory as it is untidy, and it is our conviction that were all concerned to do their duty, the deaths of so many Lowell children yearly would be thereby prevented. An occasional accident of the kind we should have under any system of fencing or protection, but with the proper safeguards, there would be an end of the condition that has given Lowell an unenviable reputation.

A CASE OF SUBSTITUTION

New this is not to be repeated, but it is too good to keep. A huge dealer who sells tanglefoot by the bottle got a tough one put over on him the other day. A fellow went in and asked for a pint of glue. The vendor passed it out and the fellow said: "I'll pay you Saturday." He wasn't the kind of man that the vendor wanted to trust and he told him to pass back the bottle. The fellow passed it back. No, the capital "N." There's a reason. HAD A PERSONAL SOUND

One evening, just as the little widow was about to leave the office, she was addressed by the deacon.

"Good evening, sister," he cordially greeted, with the usual handshake. "How do you like the sermon this evening?"

"I think that it was just too perfectly lovely for anything," was the enthusiastic reply of the widow.

"It was, indeed," heartily returned the deacon. "I only wish that larger congregations would come to hear him."

"So do I," replied the pretty little widow. "The congregation was so small tonight that every time the parson said 'amen' I heard it positively blushed."

ENGLISH IN ENGLAND

People in the Midlands use pronouns in a very nervous fashion. I once overheard a woman describing a quarrel between two other women, and her final comment was literally as follows:

"I don't know what she said or what she said to her."

"If she had said to me what she said to the other woman I'd have killed her on the spot."

Another example of the elaboration of the pronoun was heard by a friend of mine. A woman was calling to her children and a group of youngsters standing by stood to listen. One of them said:

"Er, isn't a-calling we; us don't belong to she?"—Manchester Guardian.

NEW ONE ON THE BOSS

It was to be the first double-header of the baseball season. The boy came into the office of the boss and began dragging his way from his head and twisting it shyly as he stood on one foot like a bantam rooster. The boss looked up.

"Mr. Hild," he said in a quavering voice, "I'd like to get off for a day."

"All right," said the boss, "but you must be back by five o'clock."

"Yes, yes, I know," finished the boy, "but I'm a double-header. In fact, he was planning on seeing that game himself."

"Mr. Hild," said the boss, "you got to change your clothes and sleep up a bit," pestered the boss.

"Mr. Hild," persisted the boy, "I've got to go to see my ball game. I got to stay home and mind the kids."

LAST CHANCE GONE

A traveler from the north, proceeding on foot through North Carolina, came upon a mountain cabin and found unusual evidence of rural industry. Although it was but 10 o'clock in the morning, the traveler decided to stop and get a refreshment. The cabin might not come upon anything so promising in many hours.

A tall, apparently ill-dressed woman came to the door. She looked at the traveler in amazement for some minutes and was resentful when he made known his wants.

"We've got," said in a reproachful tone, "Tom's gone to town to fetch cornmeal."

Inferred from this that there was no milk in the house, the traveler began to feel a little uneasy.

Again the woman shook her head, while her shadowy visage lengthened.

"We've got," said in a reproachful tone, "Tom's gone to town to fetch cornmeal."

HE SAVED BOY'S LIFE

FOURTEEN YEAR OLD LAD RESCUED PAUL ABBOTT FROM DROWNING

Howard Curtin of Albion street is a fourteen-year-old hero. Yesterday forenoon he saved Paul Abbott, 11, from drowning in the Merrimack river. Howard Curtin and two or three others were out walking and as they neared the second swimming hole at Indian Orchard they heard calls for help. Arriving at the swimming hole Howard Curtin took it at a glance what was happening. Other boys on the shore were waving frantically and shouting in an endeavor to attract the attention of a passing motor boat, but Howard knew that the boat could not reach the drowning boy in time and he hustled out after him. He got to the Abbott as he was going down for the 3rd time and managed to keep his head above water until the motor boat arrived. Both boys were taken on board and first aid to the drowning was rendered. The Abbott boy who was little the worse for his experience.

RADICAL CURES SKIN CANCER

BOSTON, July 19.—Radical, that mysterious and costly metal for which has been claimed powers almost supernatural in the treatment of all forms of cancer, has been officially endorsed as a specific cure of epithelioma, or skin cancer, by the authorities at the Boston City Hospital.

So far, according to Dr. James W. Mahoney, assistant superintendent of the hospital, its value as a cure for cancer has been proved only in this type of that disease.

During the past year more than 200 cases of skin cancer have been treated with this radical process, so that the authorities are willing to officially endorse it as a cure.

SIMON LAKE, INVENTOR OF SUBMARINE, SAYS GREAT CHANGE NOW IN PROGRESS

Simon Lake, inventor of the submarine, says that modern navies are already largely obsolete. He says that a great change is already in progress, the ultimate result of which should be the elimination of war between maritime countries. He says that in the future, with the aid of the submarine, which should make invasion impossible, maritime countries may settle their differences by boycotting the manufactured products of their enemies until they and their enemies come to terms on some common basis. During such period of boycott and discussion either side may by the use of submarines hamper or prevent enemies' commerce with other nations.

There is no doubt that the jitney bus service is needed in some sections, yet there are indications in many quarters that it is not standing up well under competition. It is difficult to see how it can be run on a paying basis except in cities where the business section is congested and the distances comparatively short. Like other widely heralded innovations, it probably will be popular for a time, but the kind indulgence of the public will be short-lived if the jitney bus service attempts to take advantage of unfortunate conditions as was done last week when the Wild West show was in town. More than one jitney bus driver jumped his fare to the Fair Grounds to 10 cents. Such a move is not calculated to increase public confidence in the venture. If they offer to the public a cheap taxi service, then they are opening a field too long closed to the average person. There is no reason why American cities with their obvious advantages in the way of producing cheaper cars, rubber and gasoline, should not enjoy what European cities have had for many years.

Safety First Society

The Safety First society and the police department of New York city are devising plans for the thorough examination of the mechanical parts of automobiles that figure in accidents. This may be a very effective method of proving a machine blameless, but it does not wholly free the operator from the charge of reckless driving. Doubtless many accidents are caused by defects in mechanical parts of automobiles, but it would seem that the purpose of the examination of these parts would be much better accomplished by making it previous to, rather than subsequent to, an accident. It seems like a modern version of "locking the stable door after the horse has been stolen."

The Movies

To those of us who are watching the development of the motion picture with faith in its future as an educational agent, it will come as a sort of disappointment to learn that the recent presentation in New York city of Shakespeare's "Hamlet," while successful as a picture, is not considered a success as a photoplay. The performance included such famous actors as Forbes-Robertson, Gertrude Elliott and the members of their London company, but even with these, the story of the play as pictured was impossible of interpretation by an audience not already familiar with it. This is probably due to the reason that in nearly all the Shakespearean dramas there is a tremendous amount of off-stage action which is absolutely essential to the working out of the plot, and which must be rectified by the principals in order to convey the dramatic force of the story. This condition is particularly true in "Hamlet," in which the death of Hamlet's father is revealed far along in the drama, thus making it difficult to follow the sequence of events by an audience unfamiliar with the story. For students of Shakespeare or of the drama generally, the production was a wonderful exhibition, to the patrons of motion pictures not familiar with the story, the exhibition was interesting only for the unusual quality of the acting and the excellence of the settings.

Following the Doctor's Orders

She was a young, young mother. A puny, ailing babe fretted in her arms. In one hand the young mother held a bottle of milk; in the other, a half-sucked orange. The day was blazing hot; the street car was crowded.

"Isn't your baby well?" asked a kind-hearted old lady who sat beside the young mother.

"Oh, no," was the answer, in a voice filled with anxiety, "nothing agrees with him."

"Have you seen a doctor about his food?" continued the old lady.

"Yes, and he told me to give him milk and the juice of an orange every day. I do it, but he doesn't seem to get along," and the young mother rubbed her nipple into the infant's unwilling mouth. After a few half-hearted swallows, the baby thrust aside the milk bottle and reached for the orange, and sucked hard for a few moments, then the orange was thrust aside.

"He doesn't seem to know what he wants," said the bewildered young mother.

"I am following the doctor's orders. First I give him milk, then orange juice, and he is always sick."

Just then baby began to squirm and scream with an attack of indigestion. The combination of milk and orange juice was doing its deadly work. The poor little mother looked on helplessly; the kind-hearted old lady looked pityingly at the young mother.

"Suppose you try the milk at one time, and then later on, not at the same meal, you know, let your baby have the orange juice. The combination is not a good one."

"Oh, no," returned the young mother. "I wouldn't dare to unless the doctor told me. He said I must follow his orders to the letter if I wanted my baby to live," and she pressed the little body close, as the conductor helped her off the car.

There was a case in which the advice of a nurse or even of an experienced mother might have done a lot of good. The treatment baby was receiving would make any well child sick. Yet the mother felt she was following the doctor's orders. Some young mothers know very little and some doctors not much more about feeding babies.

PRACTICAL SPORTS COSTUMES EASILY MADE
AT HOME FOR MISSES AND SMALL WOMEN

Here is an ideal sports costume. It consists of a three-piece skirt with lapped front edges and generous pockets and a plain blouse. The design is smart in every detail and all girls who like tennis, golf and boating and all outdoor pleasures will recognize its availability. In the picture, the skirt is made of white linen and the blouse is made of striped blue and white with white collar and cuffs, but one can think of a dozen ways in which the treatment could be varied. For skirts, golfing and corduroy are much liked and linen in color as well as in white is being used, pique is fashionable and there are cotton crepes and raincoats that are excellent for the purpose. For the blouse, handkerchief linens and cotton lawns are equally fashionable, plain colored crepes and plain colored voiles are much liked and tub silks, both in stripes and in plain colors are smart. Plain colored handkerchief lawns and silks are being much used with trimming of white, and trimming of striped materials, so that there is a great deal of variety possible from just these two simple garments. If the skirt is wanted for travelling in place of for sports use, it could be made of serge, either white or colored and worn with any jacket or coat to match. If a more tailored effect is wanted, a plain belt can be used in place of the cord and trimming straps extended from it to the pockets where they are buttoned into place.

Both box-plaited skirts and box-plaited blouses are exceedingly smart just now and here is a costume that will add greatly to the comfort of the late summer. It can be made of one material throughout or the skirt can be made of linen or pique, while the blouse is of handkerchief lawn, tub silk or some similar material of lighter weight. It takes extremely smart lines and is in every way desirable. Incidentally, it may be added that the college students who are looking to the autumn will like it for linen and materials of the kind to be worn in the classroom, for it is both simple and smart. If it is desirable to avoid a washable skirt, serge could be used. The plait in the skirt falls in exceedingly graceful and becoming lines and the yoke makes a smart feature. The blouse also is finished with a yoke and has the advantage of a convertible collar that can be finished as it is here or buttoned up closely about the throat. Whether a costume for the August outing is under consideration or one for between seasons is in demand, the model will be found available. There are so many attractive bordered materials to be had just now that many women are on the outlook for suitable designs. Here is one that is charming. The skirt is a simple, straight one that can be joined to a belt or to the yoke. The blouse is made with straight fronts that are adapted to this use and with a collar and vest of a contrasting material that are charming. Here, they are made of handkerchief lawn, but the sleeves and the back of the blouse are of plain voile, cut from the flouncing used for the fronts. At the waist, there is a novel girde that is made of a bright colored ribbon, but if a finish of the material is liked, that girde can be omitted, the blouse cut a little longer and shirred to form its own girde with an extension over the skirt that is very charming on many figures. As a matter of course, any bordered materials can be used treated in this same way, whether it is silk, cotton or linen and plain or flowered materials can be trimmed on their edges if a bordered fabric is not liked. There are lovely flowered voiles that make charming dresses after this model with the edges bordered or finished with hems or hem-stitched or in any such way. Bordered tafetas and bordered foulards are pretty made exactly in this manner. White crepe de chine would be very charming with bands of black velvet ribbon for trimming or with ruffles or ruffles or with bands of the tafeta for taffeta and crepe de chine combine most charmingly. Both long and three-quarter sleeves are being worn this summer and the pattern allows a choice, but most women will prefer the long ones for this model, with the frills that fall over the hands to give an exceedingly becoming effect.

What the Cook Says The French Maid Says:

Cook says to can peas. Fill the can full and shake it. Do not press the peas down in the can. Pour into the cans enough cold water to fill to overflowing, then screw the cover on tight as you can with your thumb and first finger. Place a cloth in the bottom of a wash boiler to prevent breakage. On this put a layer of cans. Cover the cans well with cold water, place the boiler on the fire and boil three hours without ceasing. On steady boiling depends much of your success. After boiling lift the boiler from the fire, let the water cool, take the cans from the boiler and tighten, let them remain until cold, then tighten again. Wipe each can to remove oil, paper to exclude the light and keep in a cool dry cellar.

Cook puts up delicious pickled beets and she has told me how. Wash well being careful not to break, cut or prick the skin, so the juice will run out. Put in boiling water and cook tender from one to two hours. Try by pressing with the finger. When done plunge into cold water. Then remove and, while still warm, can remove the skins very easily. Then slice, and to each quart of beets, add one cup of vinegar and one of water. Add one half cup of sugar, a teaspoon of whole allspice, one half teaspoon of white mustard seed, and a dozen black pepper corns. Let boil altogether for ten minutes or until thoroughly heated. Then put in quart jars full to the brim and even running over, and seal.

This is the time, cook says, to put up blackberries for next winter. For blackberry jam, wash the berries, pick them in their own juice until thoroughly heated, then press through a sieve to remove the seeds. Return the pulp to the fire with one-half the amount of sugar, and cook rapidly for twenty-five minutes, stirring constantly. For blackberry jam, weigh the berries, put them in a preserving pan, and wash well. Let them boil for twenty minutes removing any scum that rises. Add three-quarters of a pound of sugar for each pound of berries, and let boil ten minutes, or until as thick as liked.

To spice blackberries put one cup of vinegar in a porcelain kettle with two cups of sugar, two and a half pounds of blackberries and one tablespoon each of allspice, cinnamon and cloves, tied in a bit of muslin. Bring to a boil then skim out the blackberries, hold the syrup for one hour, pick the berries and let boil for fifteen minutes, then put in jars and cover tightly. A couple more of preserving recipes by cook will be welcome. Stewed strawberries, she says, are delicious. Put into the preserving kettle, in layers as many pounds of sugar as hulled, washed and dried strawberries. When the juice is drawn out a little, set over the fire to cook twenty minutes after boiling commences. Turn the berries into glass pans or earthen plates cover with paper or glass and set in the sun. Let stand, stirring two or three times each day. Store without reheating in jars or glasses. Seal the glasses with paper caps.

Peach preserves too are tasteful. Boil two pounds of sugar and a pint of water five minutes before adding the peaches and skin carefully. Add two pounds of peaches cut in halves and then pared. Let cook until tender, then skin out on platters and add the juice into the syrup as fast as it appears. Boil the syrup about twenty minutes, skimming as needed. Return the peaches to the syrup, let stand up to their store in jars. Crack a few of the stones and cook the meat with the peaches.

In making pickles, cook advises, bring in which articles for pickles are to be stored, should be strong enough to hold up an egg. A generous pint of coarse salt to one gallon of water is the usual proportion. Boil the water and salt together for one hour, which vegetables for pickles are to be kept simply over night, should be made in the proportion of one cup of salt to one gallon of water. The strongest of the spices put into pickles and should be used less freely than in the case of pickles. A tablespoon of cinnamon bark, eight or ten cloves, and one half of ginger root, or half a teaspoon of white mustard seed, is a good proportion of spices for a quart of pickles.

Pickles put up in a stoneware or unglazed earthen jar will keep for months. If the vinegar and spices are of good quality, but it is quite well to store them in small quantities, in fruit jars, which can be closed, as in canning, and open when wanted.

In making preserves, cook says, the fruit should not be overripe as the retention of the article in perfect shape is of importance. Soft fruits should be set to cook in a rich syrup. From three-quarters to a full pound of sugar is used to a pound of fruit. As sugar tends to harden fruit, firm fruit like quinces, pears and cranberries should be cooked in water until before it is added to the syrup. The same thing is true of citrus fruit made into marmalade. The water in which the fruit is cooked is few pieces at a time may be used in making the syrup. After the fruit is cooked in the syrup, this syrup may be reduced by cooking to a thicker consistency before it is poured over the fruit.

Brushes for the Kitchen
"What a lot of brushes there are in this house," said Marie, as she picked up one brush after another in her aunt's kitchen.
"Yes," returned Marie, "we think it is half the daily battle against dirt to have brushes for almost everything. Of course the kitchen, getting the hardest wear and tear, needs the most and most strenuous care, though this is a matter of personal opinion, liking, habit and conditions. There is a brush for the painted walls and for the woodwork, a double pointed white haired scrubbing brush, its merit is in having the tufts of the two pointed ends longer than the rest and somewhat separated from them, so as to enter well into the corners of the walls and the crevices of the woodwork."

An extremely strong Palmetto floor scrubbing brush has long deep cells along the sides which fit into the nap of the carpet. You know there is no stain cleaner in the universe that will take the grime and grease from all sorts of floor. The brush is so strong and well put together that it will readily remove the most obstinate stains of water, so fatal to any bristle brush.

"Other objects to be scrubbed in the kitchen as well as in all the other rooms are the window sills and casings. It is quite inconvenient to use the ordinary scrubbing brush for that purpose, and to ease that labor there is a narrow, long tufted, medium sized window brush with a long handle. The latter helps us considerably to reach and outside where it is difficult to get at unless seated on the sill. The excellent soft bristle prevents the scratching of the usually light paint, and the long handle keeps the splashing of the water a safe distance from you."

A strong gray bristled hand made brush, flat top, is very serviceable and almost an indispensable necessity in the kitchen, whether housecleaning or for every day use. Then there is the dearest little white square sink brush, with a sturdy, very solid and remarkably strong stiff bristles. To handle this in one good turn around the edges and corners of your sink with not so many means an epic and span sink, very particular corner of your kitchen."

Milady's Boudoir

Manicuring Methods

If the nails are not carefully watched and cared for during the present outdoor months they will become hard, brittle and ugly. During the days at the seashore or in the country the nails grow very dry and they need a little dab of cold cream each night to soften the flesh at the base of each nail. Before you start manicuring your nails the hands should be soaked in a bowl of warm water mixed with glycerine and a few drops of toilet water.

Twenty minutes is not too long for them to lie in the water, and after drying and a little cold cream has been added, any coating of superfluous flesh should be pushed back in its place. After a few minutes the hands should be pushed back so that the half moons show, the hands should be washed again in warm water. A tiny particle of nail rouge may, with advantage, be touched to each finger and the coloring matter rubbed with a good buffer until the nails are pretty and pink. By rubbing one of the pretty white manouche cakes across the palm of the hand and pressing the fingers over it with a swift motion, the nails gain a fine polish and make the fingers appear as if tipped by small ivory wands.

Cosmetical is excellent for softening and whitening the hands. Mix some finely powdered oatmeal with water and spread on the skin as a paste. As it dries rub it off in flakes, removing the last traces with lukewarm water. An oatmeal bag may serve the purpose if one does not care to rub the flakes directly on the hands.

Every day there are hundreds of thousands of such compliments paid to Post Toasties.

This wide appreciation encouraged the bettering of this delightful food. And the result is

Crisper, more appetizing and better than ever before.

The inner sweet meats of choicest Indian Corn are skillfully cooked, daintily seasoned, and toasted by a new process that brings out a wonderful "toastie" corn flavour.

These flakes do not mush down when cream or milk is added, but retain their body and crispness. They come to you ready to eat from the fresh-sealed, dust-proof, germ-proof package—as sweet and delicious as when they leave the ovens.

screens do not keep out flies and that they obstruct the free passage of air. Again some recommend glass covering for meat, and the retort is that glass covering increases the humidity and spoils the meat. Men who have been in the market business for years and who at all times have had the betterment of market conditions at heart, claim that the best protection is offered to meats by chilled air and electric fans. This sounds reasonable, and is something easy of trial. All of us are interested to see our markets in the best of sanitary conditions, and we are not particularly interested in the means by which it is secured provided the added devices are not so expensive that the consumer must pay the added cost to his already over-high meat bill.

WENT UP TWO PEGS

LOWELL CAPTURED DOUBLES
HONOR FROM LEWISTON
SHOWING MUCH STEAM

Well, Ketchner's colts came across with a double-header Saturday and moved up two pegs in the league standing. The day was hotter than a suet cake, and a combination sun and shower came down as the game was about to start and set the enthusiastic fans turned out in large numbers and got their money's worth. For a few moments the first game looked rather bad but Manager Ketchner was there with the third-inning and pulled out Mattie Zieser and put in Paddy Green and the day was saved. For Paddy had a choice assortment of Chicago pills.

Arthur Irwin for whom Ketchner has been breaking bad law both games fly away from him and shared the straw hat down on his forehead in defeat. It had been agreed to play the second game until 5:30 and then stop regardless of the score or the number of innings, but when at 5:40 with seven innings played and the score 4 to 1 in favor of Lowell, Arthur said: "What's the use?" and waived the 10 minutes remaining, gathered up his bats and players and sadly wended his homeward way.

The Lowell players were on edge. Shorty Dee held the only back-sitter. Shorty went bad early in the day and he received the worst punning ever given a player on the home grounds, which didn't help toward improving his play later. To add to his discomfort a badly thrown ball cut his hand and he had to finish under both physical and mental pain.

Manager Ketchner shifted the batting order, placing Walter Ahearn in Bowcock's place and Dennis down in eighth place. The change worked like a charm for in the first game Lowell tied up the score with a three bagger and won the game in the 10th with a single. Walter caught both games and gave a good faithful worker can do.

The visitors pulled a line lead in the third inning of the first game. Rettig opened with an out hitting to Shorty Dee and the ball across to first without accident. Then Becker hit to Shorty and this time, the brick yard Apollo must have thought that Estes was over on Rube Gookin's farm on the other side of the railroad tracks for he gave the ball a mighty heave, and the speed boy went to 20. He then stole third and a bad heave by Ahearn to get him at third allowed him to score. McCarthy then lifted the ball over the left field for a homer. Then Dyrceck walked and Maloney singled and incidentally Zieser walked to the bench and Green went in. Dennis hit to Dee and was out but Phillips fanned out. In the eighth again they got two more with a little ragged playing on Lowell's part. Prysock got first on Ahearn's fumble and then when Maloney bunted Bowcock threw badly and he was safe. Prysock getting third, Maloney got home and then Dennis put across a single that scored both of them. But they never smiled again.

Lowell got two in the third, Paddy Green got first without perspiring as Foster tried to pull off a funny little stunt and got caught at it. He threw Paddy's bat with his mitt and Empire Aubrey permitted Paddy to take first which was eminently proper. Swayne beat out a bunt. Faby hit to Rettig who made one of these Shorty Dee throws to first which scored Paddy and Swayne while Faby went to second. Prysock then lifted and then Faby hit a long fly to centre but Faby who came home was declared out the umpire deciding that he hadn't hit the plate in sliding in. Green started the fireworks again in the fourth with a single and went alone on Swayne's sacrifice. Faby singled to left and Green rounded third and Ahearn had gone home and gotten out but Greenhalpe on the machine motioned him back and he had to hustle to get back for Maloney was there with a perfect throw. Estes went out on a grounder to second but Barrows was there with a single and two runs came in. In the eighth Estes got on first on an error by Rettig and advanced on a sacrifice. Greenhalpe was an easy out and it looked as if Bill was frib to the bar when Ahearn came along with a three sacker way over Becker's head and Estes scored. In the 10th Faby singled and then was advanced by Estes' sacrifice. Barrows and Greenhalpe walked and with the sacks filled Ahearn singled and the game was over.

In the second game Cy Whitaker, who has the utmost respect for Barrows' prowess at the bat walked him with the bases full forcing in a run. To the fifth two were scored on a triple by Houser, a double by Swayne and a single by Barrows with a couple of plays in between. A passed ball with Ahearn on third brought home the fourth run in the sixth. The scores:

EVERS EXONERATED OF CHARGE THAT HE DECLARED RACE FOR PENNANT WAS "FIXED"

JOHNNY EVERS

President Tener of the National league said that he found nothing to substantiate published reports that Captain Evers of the Boston Braves had charged that the National league race had been "fixed." President Tener made the following statement: "My attention was attracted to an alleged statement by Captain Evers during the game between Boston and St. Louis recently that the race had been 'fixed,' and on account of the great publicity which this statement was given I decided to make inquiries. Neither Umpires Rigler nor Hart told me that Evers said they had been instructed to give St. Louis the benefit of close decisions in order to make the race close. There were no charges made against Evers to me. Baseball is so firmly established that no one except some person wholly ignorant or with a corrupt mind would credit any such statement as Evers was alleged to have made."

Some Sharp Declines

RESTRAINING INFLUENCES RESPONSIBLE FOR DECLINES IN WAR STOCKS AT OPENING

NEW YORK, July 19.—Restraining influences were responsible for some sharp declines in war stocks at the opening of today's market. A warning issued by officials of the Crucible Steel Co. resulted in a severe decline in that issue, which opened with a loss of almost three points, which was later extended to almost 7.

A similar loss was recorded by General Motors, which others, including Baldwin Locomotive, American Can, and others, followed. The more potential shares, like Reading, the Tuckers, U. S. Steel and Metals, reflected further selling pressure.

The turn over in the first half-hour was unusually large, mainly at the expense of quoted values, but later dealings diminished, with some recoveries from initial losses.

Can moved up again on a renewal of movement and some of the earlier losses were regained, with substantial improvement in Canadian Pacific, the Harbors and Reading.

and another Atlanta doctor were summoned last today.

During the night Frank was restless, his temperature continued to rise and at about daylight he was delirious at brief intervals. The temperature reached the highest shortly before 8 o'clock and then began to drop. At 9 o'clock it was a fraction over 101.

Dr. Compton, the prison physician, was not summoned over the turn of the night as were the other attendants. He stated today that some fever was to be expected and that the swelling of the neck was not necessarily an exceedingly dangerous sign. Blood poisoning is most feared. The stitches need to be holding.

STORY OF ATTACK

William Green, Fellow Convict, Slashed Frank's Throat With Butcher Knife

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., July 19.—Leo M. Frank lay last night in the Georgia state prison hospital, where attendants said he had a fighting chance for recovery. Physicians had succeeded in stopping the flow of blood from a jagged wound in his throat made with a butcher knife in the hands of William Green, a fellow convict, also serving a life term for murder. The blow was struck as Frank slept in a dormitory late Saturday night.

An investigation of the attack will probably be conducted by the Georgia prison commission, the body which refused to recommend that Frank's death sentence for the murder of Mary Phagan be commuted to life imprisonment. Reports from Atlanta were that Gov. Harris intended yesterday to ascertain if Green acted entirely of his own volition.

Green said yesterday, when taken from solitary confinement to be examined, that he planned the attack alone and that no one knew what he intended to do. He gave as his only excuse that he "thought it should be done." He said, however, he regretted his act.

Frank was quartered at night in a dormitory with about 100 other prisoners and occupied a bunk at foot from one of the two doors to the large room. Green's bunk was fourth from his. No prisoner is allowed to leave his place without permission from one of the two guards stationed at the dormitory at night. Shortly after 11 o'clock Saturday night Green called out for permission to get up and it was granted. He started down the line of bunks toward the one occupied by Frank.

As he reached it he quickly grabbed Frank by the hair and delivered one blow with the knife he had concealed. A guard rushed to the bunk and prevented Green from striking again.

Among the prisoners who rushed to Frank's aid were two physicians, one of whom was serving a life term for murder. They gave first aid and treated the wound until Dr. Guy Compton, the prison physician, was summoned from his home half a mile away. The three men took 25 stitches in Frank's neck.

Dr. H. L. Rosenthal, the Frank family physician, arrived from Atlanta yesterday with nurses. He said that while the patient's condition was precarious he had a chance for life.

Mrs. Frank, who was in Milledgeville was not told of the attack until after the physicians had finished their work. She became hysterical, but later was calmed and was taken to the prison hospital.

The cut, extends from the front of the neck around the left side, almost to the spine. Neither the windpipe nor the spinal cord is hurt, but the jugular vein is partly severed. The physicians' greatest fear last night was that some of the stitches might slip, causing more loss of blood.

KILLED BY AUTO

One Boy Dead, Other Dying - Lowell Man Held at Manchester

MANCHESTER, N. H., July 18.—Ethan H. Bouchard of 16 Varnum avenue, Lowell, a loomfixer, struck two children on Second street, in West Manchester, last evening while driving his automobile, inflicting injuries which caused the death of one of the children, and the other is in a hospital, with serious bruises and cuts.

Mr. Bouchard is being held at police headquarters pending an investigation, County Solicitor John R. Spring of Nashua and Medical Referee Maurice Watson having been notified.

Mr. Bouchard claims that while driving south on Second street, at a point just south of the Second street bridge over the Piscataquog river, that two children having hold of each other's hands spring from beside the street and directly in front of the car, giving him no opportunity to stop the machine before striking them. Mrs. Bouchard was with her husband.

The children, Ronald Goudreau, aged 6 years, and Emil, aged 3 years, lived with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Goudreau, at 421 Second street. Both children were hurried to a hospital by Milton R. Slattery, who arrived upon the scene in his car just as the accident occurred. Ronald died within a few minutes. Emil, whose most serious injury is a scalp wound, is expected to recover.

Held Without Bail

Ethan H. Bouchard of 16 Varnum avenue, this city, is being held at the Manchester, N. H. county jail, pending the result of the autopsy to be performed on the body of Ronald Goudreau, a nine-year-old boy, who it is alleged, was instantly killed by Mr. Bouchard's automobile last night. Mr. Bouchard is expected to be arraigned in court this morning to answer a complaint of manslaughter, but the arraignment was delayed pending the result of the autopsy and the Lowell man is being held without bail.

When Mrs. Goudreau, mother of the children, was informed of the accident she became prostrated and her condition is also regarded as serious. Mrs. Bouchard, who was in the machine, fainted when the accident occurred, but she was soon revived.

Ronald Goudreau, the boy who was killed, had received communion in the morning and by a strange coincidence the same priest who gave the boy communion in the morning was the first to reach him after the accident.

AUTOIST SERIOUSLY HURT

BIDDEFORD, Me., July 19.—When George W. Mitchell, aged 30, a carpenter of this city, who was driving a runabout, attempted to avoid a collision with a big touring car on the Kennebunk road yesterday, his car was dented and demolished. Mr. Mitchell, who was thrown some distance, struck on his head and shoulder and it is said his spine is injured.

Howard Burnham, who was with Mr. Mitchell, was thrown from the car and three ribs were broken. His body was also cut and bruised.

AUTO WRECKS CARRIAGE

MILFORD, July 19.—The carriage of Michael Quirk of 190 West street was upset yesterday by an auto at Lincoln square and wrecked. The occupants were thrown out, but not injured seriously.

AUTO DROPS 150 FEET

BELLOWS FALLS, Vt., July 19.—Frank Whalen of Springfield, Vt., sustained a fractured rib, a bad cut over one eye, severe bruises and a shock when a light automobile in which he was riding with Charles Hannah, also of Springfield, went over a 150-foot embankment at South Charlestown, N. H., yesterday morning. Whalen owns the machine.

INDUSTRIAL AND STORE NEWS

Local 312, Polish Textile Workers of this city, held an open meeting at its rooms, 32 Middle street yesterday afternoon for the purpose of promoting the interests of the organization. Despite the warm weather the affair was largely attended and proved a success. The speaker of the afternoon was Fortunato J. Popolis of Boston, a graduate of the Boston University Law school, and editor of a Lithuanian newspaper, who spoke principally of the advantages of the mill and of the organizations connected with the American Federation of Labor. The speaker proved very interesting, and at the close of his address the meeting was adjourned. Other speakers included Organizers D. E. Whelan of the Boot and Shoe Workers and Secretary C. E. Anderson of the Trades and Labor council. Organized by P. McMahon presided.

SEC. LANSING SUMMONED CONSUL GEN. SHANKLIN FROM MEXICO FOR CONFERENCE

WASHINGTON, July 19.—Secretary of State Lansing has withdrawn Consul Gen. Arnold Shanklin from Mexico because of difficulties he has had with the Brazilian minister, who is handling American interests.

Mr. Shanklin is to leave Mexico City for Vera Cruz today and will sail immediately for the United States. As soon as he arrives in Washington, Sec. Lansing will discuss the general Mexican situation with him and receive his version of the trouble with the Brazilian minister.

TO AVOID FRICTION

WASHINGTON, July 19.—Arnold Shanklin, American consul-general in Mexico City, is on his way to Washington, under orders from the state department to report upon conditions. This was stated officially today, and incidentally it was admitted that Mr. Shanklin had been withdrawn temporarily from duty in Mexico City to avoid continuation of friction with Senator Cardozo, the Brazilian minister there.

Last week Mr. Shanklin went to the Mexican capital to carry on Red Cross relief work. Some differences as to methods developed between the consul-general and the Brazilian minister. They were not serious but as Senator Cardozo has been for many months looking after American interests in a manner so thorough and satisfactory as to win the gratitude of the state department officials they regarded it as only proper to remove any causes of friction quite regardless of the merits of the question.

CARRANZA VICTORY CONFIRMED

WASHINGTON, July 19.—State department dispatches from Nogales confirm earlier reports of the victory of Carranza troops over Villa forces at Navajacho, Sonora.

The triumphant forces took possession of Carranza.

American Consul Sullivan reported the arrival of large quantities of food at Vera Cruz and that wireless communication between Vera Cruz and Mexico City probably would be established today by means of the new station at Chapultepec installed by Gen. Carranza.

Famine conditions in the capital are described by a Red Cross report received today. Dated July 1, it says more than 100,000 women on the previous day applied to the International committee for food tickets. Only 40,000 were available.

"Where formerly 200 people a day went to the slaughter house to get the blood that is saved and given away," the report says, "there are now 2000 daily besieging the gates. Near there the other day 20 people were seen struggling to get pieces of a dead horse."

THE PAWTUCKET BRIDGE

JACKSON PALMER CALLS ATTENTION OF THE MUNICIPAL COUNCIL TO CHARTER OF 1792

Jackson Palmer, candidate for mayor, has a word to say about the proposed bridge at Pawtucket falls and has addressed the following communication to the municipal council:

July 19, 1915.

Gentlemen:—In connection with the proposed creation of the Pawtucket bridge, I desire to call to the attention of the municipal council the possibility of lessening the expense to the taxpayers.

According to the present plans a part of the roadway over the Northern canal is to be widened. Unless some contract right, underlaid to the average taxpayer, exists between the city and the proprietors of the Locks & Canals, derogatory to the charter obligations of the Locks & Canals, this part of the expense should be assumed by the said proprietors.

I refer you to the charter of 1792, and quote as it reads: "The city shall further enacted by the authority of the city council, or if any high way shall hereafter be laid out across any such canal, it shall be the duty of the said proprietors to make and maintain in good repair a sufficient bridge or bridges over such canal."

This charter obligation has never been annulled by legislative enactment, and the city council is bound to enforce it. The same obligation exists at common law.

I also desire to call to the attention of the city government, the fact that the other highway bridges exist over canals in this city. The city takes steps to relieve itself of the burden of maintaining bridges forced upon it by the enterprise of the private contractor, and in the past cheerfully assumed by public, at a tremendous aggregate expense to Lowell's taxpayers.

Respectfully yours, Jackson Palmer.

line from the Baltic to the Dnieper. Gen. von Ruelow who was on the left of Gen. von Kluck in the first invasion of France, now commands the extreme left of the German advance toward Riga, which is being conducted by cavalry on a scale exceeding anything heretofore during the war. Berlin claims a steady advance and Petrograd concedes an advance after the Russian forces had made a stubborn contest.

On von Ruelow's right is Gen. von Elch Horn who is being held up by the great Russian fortress of Osobovetz. On von Elch Horn's right is Gen. von Gallwitz, whose name appears for the first time in large operations. After capturing Praznysk he is now pressing the German attack on the Narva river and its tributaries.

On the famous Rawa and Bzura lines there is comparative quiet, which is also reflected on the southwest side of Warsaw, but to the southeast the movement against Lublin, which was temporarily checked, is again in full swing.

The Russians must fight a defensive battle for the possession of Warsaw or abandon all of Poland. The Germans are considered undoubtedly to prefer the first issue hence the Russians in the opinion of many military observers, are likely to attempt a complete withdrawal with their armies intact. These tremendous activities by the Germans in the east suggest that they have little reserve left to devote to the western campaign, which offers the entire allies a respite either for the completion of munitions supplies or a concerted attempt to capture Lille.

Another view holds that the best service for allies could give Russia at this time would be the forcing of the Dardanelles. It is possible that the allies may combine both suggested attempts, but it is unquestionable that for the time the centre of gravity in the war has shifted to eastern Europe.

The western front continues quiet without sign of any new development. The Italians report some progress in the mountains east of Trentino where the invaders are now striking towards one of the two railroads serving Austria's Trentino forces.

The South Wales coal strike situation continues serious with the belief growing that the only solution lies in government operation of the mines during the period of the war.

Lafrance pleaded guilty and offered an excuse the fact that he had been blind for six years and took this means of supporting himself. He has been convicted for the illegal sale of liquor in the local court before, it was stated. Fifty dollars more was added to the day's contributions by the fine imposed.

Sentenced to Jail

John O'Donnell, the youth who created the disturbance with the team Saturday night, was found guilty of drunkenness and unlawfully taking a team belonging to Leslie S. Peavey. After the story of the affair had been related to the court by Patrolmen Winn and Connors and Mr. Peavey, Judge Enright imposed a three months' jail sentence for the larceny of a team and a month additional for the third offence for drunkenness.

George Larvee of this city and Arthur Martin of Beverly decided to join the 101 Ranch circus last Friday and started out with the crew from this city at night. They soon got tired of the life, however, and after a half day agreed to quit and return to Lowell. Having no money, the boys came via the freight cars and reached Western avenue in safety but soon found themselves in the hands of Patrolman Drewett. They pleaded guilty in court today in complaints charging them with unlawfully riding on a freight car. Larvee was ordered to pay a fine of $10 and Martin was continued until tomorrow in order that the probation officer could investigate his story.

Shop Lifting

Sergei Polnie went to A. G. Pollard's store Saturday evening and arrested Louis Zeota, charged with stealing five belts and three pairs of stockings from the counters of the store. Zeota pleaded not guilty, claiming that he was intoxicated, but the court was satisfied with the evidence of a floor walker and the police sergeant and ordered him to pay a fine of $10.

Adam Bickra was arrested on Stackpole street about 3 o'clock this morning while carrying a plant and jar of jam, belonging to Joseph F. Houck. He pleaded guilty to a larceny complaint and was ordered to pay a fine of $10.

Five boys were arrested yesterday in the rear of the Y. W. C. A. on July street where a lively card game was in progress. Four were juveniles and the fifth, Joseph W. Fournier, pleaded guilty of a charge of playing at a game on the Lord's day. Deputy Downey informed the court of complaints made about this spot by residents of the vicinity. On account of the defendant's mother being partly dependent upon her son for help the case was placed on file.

John Matthias of North Billerica and Adelaide Black of Cambridge were taken from a house on Church street, in the city of Boston, Saturday night by Officers Livingston, O'Brien and Doyle charged with a statutory offence. They pleaded guilty and each paid a fine of $15. Owen T. McInerney and Lillian Hubert, also booked for a statutory offence, had their cases continued for one week. Nine drunks were present when this case was heard.

The case of John J. Jordan, disorderly conduct in Billerica, was continued for one week. Mrs. Susie E. Dugan is the complainant.

Another Liquor Case

Bridget Sullivan of 143-15 Adams street, who has been convicted several times in the local court for the illegal sale of liquor, will be summoned into court tomorrow or Wednesday as a result of an alleged sale of whiskey made by her to a member of the police department yesterday. A small quantity of whiskey was also seized and many empty bottles were found about the house.

Supt. Welch claims that a police officer seated himself on the front steps of Mrs. Sullivan's house early yesterday morning. When a roomer appeared in the door the officer, in the guise of a laborer, asked where he could purchase a drink. The man in the door suggested that the "stranger" give him the money and he would secure the liquor, but the man refused to do so and it was finally arranged for the officer to meet Mrs. Sullivan. Both went inside and it is claimed purchased liquor. Inspectors appeared on the scene immediately afterward.

NINTH ENCAMPMENTS

Regiment Has Hard Dusty Tramp After Leaving Train

SANDWICH, July 19.—The Ninth regiment put in one strenuous day of hard work before taps was sounded last night in making itself at home on the estate of Councillor Eben Keith, where the famous "Fighting Ninth" will have field headquarters.

Prospects of the tour of duty being a hard one became evident upon arrival in Sandwich. The ride on the steam cars from Boston was easy, then the work began.

The march from the Sandwich depot to the camp was over roads for the major portion of the way two inches deep with dust and the companies on the left of the regiment marched in the clouds of dust raised by the companies ahead and it was a sorry looking lot of soldiers that broke ranks in camp at 3.30 o'clock.

A wash-up was the main object of all the men and this was accomplished easily as the camp is splendidly equipped with running water piped from the lake.

Make Camp With Speed The major part of the day was devoted to making camp and this was accomplished with speed and in a businesslike manner, which drew forth praise from the inspecting officers.

The United States army officers present to judge the work of the regiment are Capt. Yates and Regen of

DUMMER ST. EXTENSION

Mr. Dempsay Wants $25,000 Land Damages - Hearing Was Held Today

A hearing having to do with property values in connection with the proposed extension of Dummer street from Merrimack to Market streets was held in the mayor's reception room at city hall this forenoon. George C. Dempsay was present at the hearing, representing George C. and William C. Dempsay, trustees, at the amount of money necessary to keep the city rolling. He suggested that in the event of his present place of business being put out of commission by the extension, that the city erect a building for him on a lot near his present building or buildings. He said the lot was pretty small, 30x60 feet, but he allowed that the necessary space might be acquired by going high enough in the air. He said that the disturbance to his business would mean a great deal to him, but he wanted the city to deal strictly to understand that he did not seek to make any money out of the city. No definite action was taken and Mr. Dempsay told the mayor and commissioners that in the event of anything new arising he would be willing and glad to discuss it with them.
